DID NOT ADVISE VAHEY TO KEEP TUCKER OFF THE STAND.

Judge Sherman, in His Memoirs, Refutes Statement of Convicted Man's Lawyer.

CORROBORATED BY OTHERS

Associate Judge and Sheriff Subscribe to Falsity of Vahey's Statement.

WHY was Charles L. Tucker never placed upon the witness stand to testify in his own behalf in the trial which ended in his conviction for the murder of Maud Page?

This question was given new life yesterday through the publication of the memoirs of Judge Edgar J. Sherman, who, with Judge Henry N. Sheldon, presided at the Tucker trial.

Judge Sherman, in his memoirs, refutes the statement of James H. Vahey, Tucker's counsel, to the effect that Mr. Vahey, in keeping Tucker off the witness stand, acted upon Judge Sherman's advice.

In a statement printed in the Boston Globe after the conviction of Tucker, Vahey said, "Judge Sherman asked me if I wanted any advice from him on the matter. I said that I would be glad to receive it."

Judge Sherman devotes several pages in his memoirs to proving that he did not volunteer his advice to Mr. Vahey and that he did not advise Mr. Vahey to keep Tucker off the witness stand.

Verified by Judge Sheldon.

The statement by Judge Sherman, contradicting the statement made by Mr. Vahey, is verified by Judge H. N. Sheldon, the associate on the bench of Judge Sherman during the trial, and by Sheriff John R. Fairbairn of Middlesex county. They were both present when Mr. Vahey of his own volition said to Judge Sherman, "I want to ask your advice."

To the Globe, Mr. Vahey said: "Judge Sherman asked me if I wanted any advice from him on the matter."

According to the statement over the names of the two judges who tried Tucker, and the sheriff who was his jailer, Mr. Vahey was not advised by Judge Sherman either to put Tucker on the stand or keep him off.

Judge Sherman's chapter on the Tucker trial and what preceded it is said to him during its progress and later to a newspaper forms very interesting reading. In the newspaper statement Mr. Vahey sought to throw both directly and by inference the responsibility upon the judge for the failure of Tucker to take his proper stand. It was for this reason that Judge Sherman explains that the impression when Tucker's leading attorney was in a quandary, and asked for advice of his was acted. In fact, Judge Sherman sharply repudiates Vahey's interview, and declares it to be false.

"The book was not written to be sold, but is privately printed, and the author says in his preface that it was prepared for private use only, thinking it might interest his descendants.

Judge Sherman's Statement.

Judge Sherman refused several weeks ago to permit a newspaper to make excerpts from this book, which is entitled "Some Recollections of Early Judicial Life," when asked to grant it soon after the work came off the press. But yesterday he caused the following official document to be given out at the Court House in Pemberton square:

"An interview between Judge Sherman and a Boston reporter which took place several weeks ago.

"Reporter—Judge Sherman, are you writing your memoirs?

"Judge Sherman—No. It might not to be published, and especially at this time, while Mr. Vahey is looking for an appointment to office. It was in the nature of a private conversation. It was not for publication, or at some future time it became important to secure the preserved as a part of the history of the times.

"Reporter—Do you think Mr. Vahey intended to put a falsehood or deceit for publication in his article in the Globe?

"Judge Sherman—No. I have regarded Mr. Vahey as an honorable man.

"Reporter—You have seen the memorandum signed by you, Judge Sheldon and the sheriff, and know that the statement in the Globe article is not true.

"Judge Sherman—You must remember that Mr. Vahey was a young attorney with a great responsibility resting upon him in that trial. He had been severely criticised for not putting Tucker on the witness stand. As soon as Tucker was dead, Mr. Vahey published that article, evidently without carefully considering all the facts. Of course, I should not have volunteered advice under such circumstances, but he relates, while he is in error about the facts which are related in the Globe article, I think it happened as I have suggested."

Thousands Urged Clemency.

After the conviction of Tucker many thousands of people in Massachusetts thought as Judge Sherman does now, that, even if guilty, the evidence offered by the government did not warrant the State in taking his life. Petitions were sent to thousands of names upon the governor petition taken by the State Board asking for clemency for the condemned prisoner.

In his chapter on the Tucker trial Judge Sherman says:

"If the defense had rested on the government's case it would not have created so strong a doubt. It did in the end, but depended in evidence of an alibi and much evidence tending to establish the prisoner's innocence, yet the jury evidently believed that it was not true, but manufactured.

"Many who had assiduously followed the Tucker trial thought it strange that the prisoner did not take the witness stand and tell, himself, where he was and what he did during the fateful time when the State claimed he was in the Page house and committing murder. Mr. Vahey, as

Mrs. Jack Gardner Refuses to Remove Hat at Symphony

Mrs. Henry L. Higginson Also Wears Headdress Throughout Concert, Despite Notices in Hall.

Mrs. Jack Gardner last night refused to comply with the request made by the Symphony Hall management that those who attended the concert remove their hats. She kept her handsome millinery creation on her head despite the fact that every where she turned her eyes there were placards requesting all women to do other wise.

The request was made because of complaints by several subscribers.

Mrs. Gardner was not alone in defiance. There were six women in the body of the house who kept their hats on, while those in rear rows of the first and second balconies did likewise. Mrs. Gardner sat in a rear seat in the first balcony. She wore a large black hat trimmed with an immense cluster of osprey plumes.

Miss Amory, who is exceptionally pretty, wore a chic and most becoming hat of white lace, trimmed with touches of blue and big white plumes. Two hats perched on by a few women in the body of the house were mostly toques and some of the wearers were elderly. Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, wife of the leader-founder of the orchestra wore a close fitting black velvet affair. Mrs. Washington Sargent wore a small blue and white confection.

There is an ordinance prohibiting women to remove hats in the theatres in this city. From the date it was passed but few fair theatregoers have objected to it.

President Pleads for Public Righteousness In Thanksgiving Decree

"Let Nation Turn From Wealth and Set Its Face Against Evil," Says Proclamation Naming Nov. 26.

After dwelling the wonderful growth of the United States in financial and moral power, the President says:

"With a nation of the millionaires who make up a nation, material well-being is no true indication of the real welfare of the individuals composing the body. That side by side with great wealth there should be shown in our great cities much, those things which clabber needs to the poorest and most helpless. The power that rests only on wealth, I have answered, will not endure. Wealth must be raised the sanctions of the lofty life of the spirit if it is to be used aright to build its great mission and to accomplish all that is possible in the hope of mankind.

"The things of the body are good, the things of the intellect better, but best of all are the things of the soul, for in the nation as in the individual the life is the manner that counts. Let us then, before all else, pray that we may be filled with righteousness and with great strength with righteousness, and in order that this gift may be given us we must turn from all forms of wickedness and baseness, and set our faces against evil, whether in private life or in the body politic, and especially must we shun the allurements of that evil which comes from the possession of overgrown wealth, for wealth, when used aright, carries with it the chance for great usefulness and honorable achievement, but when used wrongly it is certain to bring in its train the surest forms of degradation and moral death.

"Now, therefore, I Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday, the 26th day of November next as a day to be devoted by all our people to giving and prayer, and on that day I recommend that the people shall cease from their daily work, and that they gather in their churches, meet decently to thank the Almighty for the bounties which He has showered upon us, and to pray that we may be forgiven for our shortcomings and that strength so to order their lives as to deserve a continuation of these blessings in the future."

MAN KILLED UNDER HEAVY GRANITE TRUCK

William Higgins Crushed to Death While Boarding Car in South Boston.

William Higgins, twenty-eight years old, an ice wagon helper, whose address is unknown, was crushed to death by a granite wagon on Broadway and Dorchester avenue last night. Higgins was boarding the trolley station to take a car, when the wheels of the granite wagon, a four-horse truck owned by A. M. Castle & Co., and heavily loaded with granite, crushed by, shutting off the life of the young man instantly. He could not get away until the truck, as he was boarding the car, was right upon him, the end of it to catch his cap, which fell to the ground.

He failed to notice a heavy wagon at the left of him, which was being driven by a granite driver, and he was caught between the two wagons, the big truck passing him, crushing in his chest. He died before he could be carried into the nearest shelter. The body was taken to the City Hospital morgue.

AGED WOMAN RUN DOWN AND FATALLY INJURED

Mrs. Sarah McDevit of Roxbury Crushed Under Team.

While crossing East Cottage street at Edward Everett square, Roxbury, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Sarah McDevit, seventy years old, of No. 24 Mount Pleasant, was run down by a three-horse team and fatally injured.

Both of the aged woman's legs were broken and she also received other internal injuries. The team of the prize grocery of Fay, Smith & Co. on No. 24 Fulton street, and was driven by Frederick Cox of No. 2268 Second street, South Boston.

Mrs. McDevit was taken to the City Hospital. Later she was removed to her home, and that her chances of recovery were slight.

POLICE CALLED TO RIOT AS MOB FIGHTS POLICE

A riot call sent in by a citizen to the Broadway police station in South Boston last night took a squad of police from the run to No. 295 that Connaughtaire, where Appolin Hall had been let and it was a mob outrage. It is said that two Poles, accompanied by two women, were on their way home from a saturday night dance at 11:15 and made some rejoinder to the remarks by a crowd of young men on the sidewalk. The crowd immediately closed in and the two Poles were beaten and kicked until they were in terror for their lives and sought refuge in the door way. They were able to get away from their assailants and disappear before the police arrived.

45,000 MARCH TODAY IN CITY'S VAST CHURCH PARADE.

Greatest Civic-Religious Demonstration Ever Held in History of Boston.

CATHOLIC SOCIETY DAY

Church Dignitaries of Nation to Review Army of Holy Name Members.

THE CROWNING EVENT

Procession Through Back Bay Streets Will Take Six Hours to Pass.

WITH one hundred bands filling the air with music, with thousands of American flags variegated banners flying in the breezes, forty or forty-five thousand men, all members of the Roman Catholic society of the Holy Name, will this afternoon march through the streets of the Back Bay.

This will be the greatest, civic-religious demonstration of the series celebrating the centenary of the establishment of the diocese of Boston. It is believed that the demonstration of this afternoon will be greatest so far as numbers are concerned, ever seen in Boston. Certainly nothing like it will have ever been seen before among religious bodies.

Catholic churches, the homes of Catholics, Catholic institutions and many of the large stores of the city have been decorated in honor of the parade which will start from organizations of the society of the Holy Name in numerous parts of the city this afternoon, and tonight but the organizations which will march in the various sections are permitted to be entered.

Five Counties Represented.

Five counties of Massachusetts—this city of Suffolk, Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth, will furnish the bulk of the mighty army of men who are to march this afternoon in honor of the Most Holy Name of Jesus. Organizations are expected to be in the line from far distant parts of the Commonwealth.

Every available boarding train and street car will be crowded with passengers, either members of the marching societies or visitors to the city who are desirous of witnessing the greatest Catholic parade ever seen in the New World. Special trains are to be run from Providence, Fall River and Lowell bringing delegations from the two cities named, and from many points in between. The Providence delegation will be the largest from that city alone for many years.

Cardinal Gibbons and other members of the hierarchy of the United States will review the parade from the grand stand erected immediately in front of the Church of the Holy Name, on Berkeley street, near Commonwealth avenue. There will be no delay waiting for the great parade to pass the reviewing stand, the length of the marching lines which will be in motion for more than four hours, covering only six hours and a half to complete its journey.

Church Leader to Review March.

The parade is to be reviewed by the highest ecclesiastic of the Roman Catholic Church in America, Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore. The Eminence the Cardinal and Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, had all of the scene and the parade will be held as Monsignor Lavelle, who has participated in the theology celebrations of the century of the Church in this country, and who has been particularly identified with the Holy Name movement, will be present. Monsignor Lavelle will be the marshal of the parade, together with staff and aids of the Archbishop. He will be mounted on a reviewing stand, Bay State bred and trained for the occasion.

The paraders will pass under an immense triumphal arch near the end of the line of march, on Boylston street, in front of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, corner of Boylston and Exeter streets. Here will be a reviewing stand for the Archbishop and his party, and the marchers will pass under the arch in a steady stream.

Everything in Readiness.

Final preparations for the impressive parade were completed yesterday by Major John J. Leonard, chief marshal. Major Leonard has given much time and labor to the arrangements for the parade, and so far has left nothing undone that will add to the success of the event.

Everything is now in readiness for the parade, and the men who are to march in the Sunday afternoon procession are looking forward to the event with pleasure. Present indications are that the weather will be favorable for the parade, and it is expected that the attendance will be much greater owing to the fact that the parade will not start before the noon of the day. The only disadvantage that will be suffered by the men in the ranks will be the fact that they will have to march a short distance before they reach the reviewing stand, but this is not considered a serious matter.

Over Six Hours to Pass.

The parade will start promptly on time at 2 p. m., and instructions have been sent out to all the division commanders to report at the starting point at least half an hour before that time. I expect that the parade will be over about 6:30 o'clock, although a slight delay may occur that will make this impossible.

"If all the divisions keep the alignment as made out by the chief marshall I expect that about 9000 men will pass in given point in an hour. It will be the biggest parade ever held in Boston and will be a worthy tribute of Catholic men to their church and the Holy Name society.

The parade will march in fourte a division. A mounted squad of police will precede Chief Marshal Leonard and his staff and the members of the Holy Name

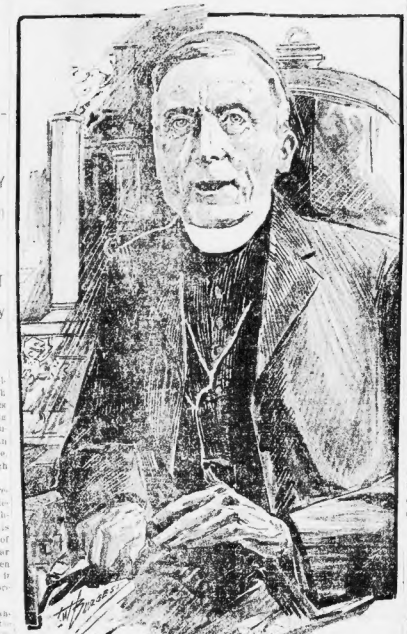
Cardinal Gibbons, Sketched Yesterday on Arrival in Hub



CARDINAL'S GREETING TO BOSTON ON CENTENNIAL

Gibbons Here for Great Celebration Through Sunday American Gives Message to New England.

I congratulate the city of Boston, the Archdiocese of Boston and the people of Boston on the occasion of the centenary of the See of Boston and I have come here to show my good will by participating in the closing ceremonies of the centenary.

I bring a message which James, Cardinal Gibbons, the highest ecclesiastical dignitary of the Roman Catholic church in America, sends to the people of Boston and the Catholics of the archdiocese through the Boston Sunday American.

Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, in Boston, has come to lend the dignity of his presence to the final ceremonies and demonstrations of the week of the celebration of the one hundred years existence of the Diocese of Boston.

His coming is the culminating event of the week of celebration of the centenary of the See of Boston in being here and participating in the final exercises. The presence of this cardinal, the highest dignitary of the Catholic church in America, is the most significant event in the history of the Catholic church in Boston. It is first Bishop it was consecrated at Baltimore, the Cardinal's See.

Greeted by Archbishop.

Cardinal Gibbons, who this morning will become one of the figures in the ceremonies of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, when he is received by Archbishop O'Connell, coming to Boston by the Boston & Albany railroad.

On arrival at the Back Bay Station of the New Haven road at 9:15 o'clock, he was escorted to Holy Cross Cathedral, Harrison avenue, by a delegation of Knights of Columbus, headed by Major John J. Leonard, chief marshal of the day's great demonstration. Automobiles were in waiting immediately on the arrival of the train at 12:45 o'clock. There must be no delay waiting for the great prelate, for the parade will be the longest of the marching days which will be in motion for more than four hours, covering only six hours and a half to complete its journey.

Cardinal in Best of Health.

The cardinal, the archbishop and the party were greeted at the Cathedral rectory by Vicar-general George J. Patterson. The car that was apparently in the very best of health and spirits exhibiting no trace whatever of his recent serious illness in Rome and London. His step was brisk and full of strength, his face of good color and his blue eyes were bright.

The cardinal retired to his room after the usual courtesies of the greeting had been said and soon visiting priests as happened to be in the rectory called to pay their respects. He was not disturbed, as is his invariable custom, nor would he meet with anyone except by appointment. It is not known that he consented to receive the newspaper men who are here in large force from all parts of the archdiocese through the Boston Sunday American.

HEARST SHOWS HOW OIL TRUST BOUGHT PRESS

More Archbold Letters Disprove His Denial That He Boosted Judges and Reveal How Papers Were Subsidized.

TAFT ATTACKS BRYAN; BRYAN SCORES JOHN D.

Mack's Latest Democratic Claim is 341 Electoral Votes; Hitchcock Contented With 325 — Hughes Strengthens New York.

That the Standard Oil Company's corrupting influence extends beyond the direct control and purchase of Senators and Representatives; that magazine editors and newspaper publishers have been subsidized and lecturers paid large sums to create favorable public opinion, was revealed last night by William Randolph Hearst.

Mr. Hearst spoke at two big Independence party rallies in New York. Thomas L. Hisgen and John Temple Graves, the banner bearers of the party, spoke from the same platform. Enormous crowds were assembled in both Carnegie Hall and the Crotona Casino, where the meetings were held.

Mr. Hearst read more of the Archbold letters, showing that Mr. Archbold falsified when he declared Judge Morrison of Pennsylvania did not know that Archbold got Morrison advanced to the higher court.

A letter from Joseph C. Sibley, "the Oil Trust spy in Congress," to Archbold, recites a plan to buy "the Associated Press and kindred avenues" for the purpose of establishing "an efficient literary bureau."

Bryan and Taft Both Confident

After a busy day's stumping tour of New York state, William H. Taft brought his campaign to a close with a vigorous arraignment of Bryan as the "bogie man of business," declaring "his defeat is necessary to insure the business future of the country." Mr. Taft expressed confidence of election.

William J. Bryan, after a whirlwind dash about Indiana, issued a confident statement giving eight reasons why he felt sure of victory.

President Roosevelt last night "took another shy" at John D. Rockefeller's declaration that he would vote for Taft. The President characterized the endorsement as a trick to turn votes to Bryan.

Last night the rival claim agents of the Republican and Democratic parties were cutting up the country to suit themselves. Chairman Mack was claiming 341 electoral votes for Bryan, 99 more than enough. Chairman Hitchcock for Taft was claiming 325 votes, or 43 more than necessary. Hitchcock claims thirty-seven States with only Missouri and Kentucky in the doubtful column. He conceded the solid South to Bryan.

Charles E. Hughes, candidate for Governor of New York, last night ended his up-state tour. His assistants expressed the opinion that the campaign had decidedly strengthened the chances for Taft in the State.

President Roosevelt, Secretary Loeb, and the cabinet officers will desert Washington to cast their votes at home. Assistant Secretary of State Robert Bacon will be at the helm of the State Department.

Three Prominent Candidates In European Tour Contest

WEEK OF HEAVY VOTING IN FREE EUROPEAN TOUR

Twenty-nine New Sunday School Teachers Entered in Contest and Stream of Ballots Changes Standings.

NAMES of twenty-nine new candidates appear to-day in the list of contestants in the BOSTON AMERICAN Free European Tour contest for Sunday School teachers of Boston and suburbs.

New faces show prominently in five districts. In Newton and Brookline (District No. 2), and in Waltham and Watertown (District No. 4), there was especial activity during the week, and it is promised from both districts that some of the late teachers to enter will force their way rapidly toward the top in the next week or two.

Heavy voting characterized the contest throughout the entire week from early Monday morning until well into yesterday afternoon. Votes and special ballots poured into the European tour department almost in a steady stream, and last night hundreds of anxious contestants sought information over the telephone from the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN as to their standing in the final count for the week.

In District No. 8 (Boston), where the rivalry is intense between fifteen candidates, Miss Helena Tortorella, a popular young teacher in the Sunday School of the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii, succeeded in soaring almost to the 50,000 mark in the voting.

Elizabeth Bingham, of the First Presbyterian Church, Brookline, succeeded in getting to the top in District No. 2 and forcing Margaret Hickey of St. Mary's Church, Brookline, into second place.

Miss C. P. Lawler, of Maplewood Baptist Church, Maplewood, came within 171 votes of taking first place from Maurice R. Flynn of the Sacred Heart Church, Malden.

Ella McCrillis of Broadway M. E. Church, Somerville, jumped into first place in District No. 8 and attained a lead of more than 5,000 over Miss Anna Hennessy of St. Catherine's Church, Somerville.

Send Votes and Cheery Words.

Following are a few of the letters received yesterday:

"European Tour Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN—Enclosed find 1,000 votes and a special ballot for 3,000 votes, which please credit to Miss Mollie Elliot in District No. 9. Miss Elliot is one of the most popular Sunday school teachers in Cambridge, and all her friends, in appreciation of her delightful spiritual work among children, are banding together to give her a big testimonial vote. She will surely win."

"European Tour Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN—Please send me about twenty-five special ballots, which I intend to distribute among my friends to-day, and the candidacy of Alfred W. Treen of St. Paul's Church, Beechmont. Mr. Treen is OUT TO WIN in District No. 6. We'll do it, boys! Hm, hm. WATCH US. "A REVERE PARENT."

"European Tour Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN: I have been watching with interest the progress of your European Tour contest, and am interested in the candidacy of Miss Ruth Flynn, of Hyde Park, and have noted with satisfaction the rapid strides she has made since entering. I do not want to take up your time, but please permit me to say that Miss Flynn is going to have the backing of more friends than she imagines. Even strangers are working for her. GOOD LUCK TO HER."

"MISS J. M. F."

"European Tour Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN: Good luck to Miss Ella McCrillis, Somerville's best known Sunday School teacher, who is entered in your contest. May she pull an enormous vote! I'm working hook and nail for her. A NEIGHBOR.

Bruen; twelfth, Hugh J. Weir of Lowell, and Rev. Michael Ronan and Rev. J. F. Burns; thirteenth, Hon. John Breen, Lawrence, and Rev. James A. O'Reilly; fourteenth, Major Ronbel J. Murphy, South Framingham, and Rev. John McBernan and Rev. T. C. Harrigan.

Route of the Parade.

Promptly at 12.45 o'clock the parade will begin to move over the following route: Corner of Massachusetts avenue to Beacon street to Beacon street, Bay State road, Ashby street, Commonwealth avenue and Arlington street.

Chief Marshal Leonard and staff will review it at the corner of Berkeley street and Commonwealth avenue. The sections of the route is considered excellent, as it shows the way to march on wide and well paved streets.

The chief marshall has urged upon the division as dandelry commanders the necessity for taking their commands in marching order away from the disbanding point for some distance, in order that no confusion will be caused. This is one of the most essential orders given to the paraders to remember.

Where Divisions Form.

The second division will form not later than 12.15 on Marlborough street, right resting at Massachusetts avenue, and the third division on Marlborough street, right resting on Dartmouth street.

The fourth division will form on the northerly side of Commonwealth avenue, right resting at Massachusetts avenue, and the fifth division will form on the same street with the right resting at Dartmouth street.

The sixth division will form not later than 1.15 o'clock on Beacon street, right resting on Massachusetts avenue while the seventh division will form on Charles street, right resting at Beacon street; eighth division will form on Marlborough street, right resting at Massachusetts avenue and the ninth division on Marlborough street, right resting at Fairfield street, both division on northerly side of Commonwealth avenue, right resting at Massachusetts avenue; eleventh division will form not later than 2.30 on northerly side of Commonwealth avenue, right resting at Dartmouth street; twelfth division on Beacon street Mall, right resting at the corner of Beacon and Charles street; thirteenth division on Beacon street, right resting at Charles street and left extending towards the State House; and the fourteenth division will form not later than 3 o'clock on the Charles street Mall, right resting at the corner of Charles and Beacon streets.

More Than 100 Bands.

One of the features of the parade will be the plentiful supply of music, for over 100 bands and drum corps will enliven the marchers. Many of these bands will cover far more than one route, having been engaged by societies parading late in the afternoon.

Many of the churches will have their own drum corps in line, in addition to the hired bands. The musicians in the parade will number over 2,000.

The marching columns will carry no flags other than the American red, white and blue, but many of the societies have provided small pennants of the papal colors to be carried in the hand of each member. Each society will also carry a large banner at their head to identify their respective organization.

Hundreds of priests will march in the parade, as many of the pastors and curates of churches, other than the spiritual directors of the societies, have expressed their desire to participate in the public demonstration.

Aid Stations Along Line.

Ample provisions for accidents and emergencies along the entire route have made by General William H. De Witte, surgeon. There will be six "first aid stations" in charge of physicians and located as follows: Station A, on the Common, near Charles and Charles streets, in charge of Drs. Simpson A. Callanan, Eugene L. Maguire and Joseph A. Cogan; Station B, Commonwealth avenue near Arlington street, Drs. John F. Fennessy and Edward M. Harding; Station C, Commonwealth avenue near Dartmouth street, Drs. Chancy H. Winn and Joseph A. Sprogles; Station D, Massachusetts avenue, corner of Commonwealth avenue, Drs. John F. Harvey, Edward B. Horley and T. J. Shanahan; Station E, Ashby street, corner of Bay State road, Drs. William J. Gulliran and Charles E. Morgan; Station F—No. 629 Beacon street, Drs. Thomas F. Leed and Daniel F. Mahoney.

The Police Detail.

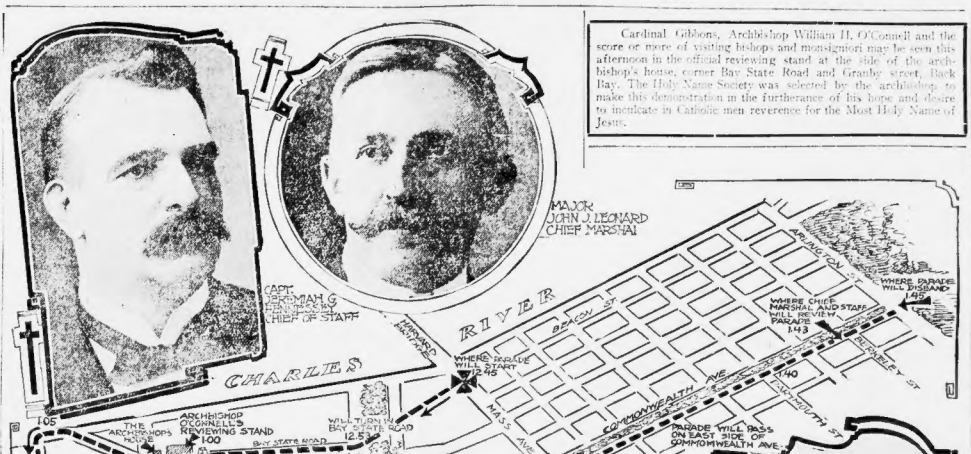
Dr. Laura A. C. Hughes, the well known Spanish war nurse, will have charge of a large corps of nurses and will assign two or more nurses to each relief station. Ten ambulances from the police department and the various hospitals of the city will be located at various points along the route.

Superintendent of Police William H. Pierce has assigned Captain Frank J. Jones, of the Back Bay station, to take charge of the detail of 425 police officers that will be distributed all along the route. Captain Jones will be assisted by sixteen sergeants, and of the total number 275 men will come from the outlying stations of the city.

Fifty men each from the Lagrange street, Joy street and Back Bay stations will be detailed for the formation and dismissal of all the divisions.

Nightworkers Section.

Another feature will be the section made up o fmembers of the Night Workers' Chapel of the Immaculate Conception, connected with the Cathedral. The attendance of this chapel, which is under the direction of the Rev. Patrick J. Lyon, night



Route over which the Holy Name hosts will march; Chief Marshal and members of his staff; Map also shows time at which it is expected the head of the parade will reach given points.

Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop William H. O'Connell and the score or more of visiting bishops and monsignori may be seen this afternoon in the official reviewing stand at the side of the archbishop's house, corner Bay State Road and Granby street, Back Bay. The Holy Name Society was selected by the archbishop to make this demonstration in the furtherance of his hope and desire to inculcate in Catholic men reverence for the Most Holy Name of Jesus.

CHURCH LEADERS TO REVIEW MARCH

Route of Procession Will Be Through Streets of Back Bay.

The men are expected to number 300 in the parade and relatively as much interest is expressed in their marching for the night parade as the morning portion, for on one occasion having started noon at 3:30 o'clock in the morning at the chapel.

Following the parade many of the societies will simply hold receptions. Members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians who parade will be entertained in Dudley Union Hall, and the Italian and other associations have provided refreshments and entertainments for their members in the line of march.

Shift Car Schedule.

Between 11:30 o'clock this morning and 6:00 o'clock tonight the service of the Elevated Railway Company's surface cars entering the city by way of Commonwealth avenue, Beacon street and Harvard and Allston streets will be such that there will be no interference with the parade. Between these points and Cambridge Park street subway and Cambridge Charles street cars will run over Hanover and Court streets over the West Boston bridge.

Beacon street cars will be run only between College's corner and the Reservoir, and patrons wishing to visit this district from the city will take cars via Brookline Village and Harvard street, transferring at College corner.

Auburndale and Waltham cars and the Cambridge-Cottage Farm line will be run no farther north than Commonwealth avenue and Essex street. For connection with Auburndale cars patrons will take cars to Eliot street, and for connection with Waltham car at Watertown will take Watertown car at the head of Hanover street.

Where to Get Cars.

The Cambridge-Roxbury lines will be discontinued entirely, and extra service will be run from Dudley street and Roxbury Crossing to Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street, and from Cambridge via Harvard bridge to Massachusetts avenue and Beacon street.

The South and West End lines and the Forest Hills-North station lines will be discontinued during the parade. The Clarendon Hills-Somerville, to Pleasant street subway station and Scollay square subway station.

FOOD FAIRS CLOSE SUCCESSFUL RUNS

When the Boston Food Fair, under the auspices of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, closed last night after a most successful week at the Mechanics' building, Huntington avenue, fifty three-quarters of a million persons had passed through the turnstiles and visited the exposition. From all reports this has already surpassed its six predecessors. The display in the building was a revelation to many. Arrangements have already been made to hold the next annual Boston Food Fair in the Park Square Coliseum by the officers of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association. All yesterday the fair was thronged with thousands of visitors, before the doors were closed last night Chief of Police Joseph J. Hayes and John C. Neil, officials of the fair, were made the recipients of jewelry as tokens of their services.

Successful beyond expectations has been the New England Food Fair and House Furnishing Exposition, which closed last night, after a record breaking run of four weeks in Mechanics' building. Fifty-odd thousand persons visited the fair in four weeks, which is 50,000 more than in last year.

Green and Rowe, the managers of the exposition, have already secured Mechanics' building for the holding of another fair and exposition next year.

Several presentations of jewelry were made to the officers and managers last night.

There will be 1,425 officers in the parade.

But one hour will be required for any one committee to pass over the line of march.

The men are to march in files of twelve, four paces between files.

None but Marshal John J. Leonard and his staff are to be mounted.

Four hundred and fifty policemen will be stationed along the route.

Sixteen doctors and twenty nurses will be at "first aid" stations.

W. R. HEARST'S SPEECH DELIVERED LAST NIGHT AT INDEPENDENCE PARTY RALLIES

New York, Oct. 31.—William Randolph Hearst spoke as follows at Carnegie Hall to-night

My Friends.—Last Monday Mr. Archbold attacked me quite severely for my lack of etiquette in reading his private letters to the people's public servants. Mr. Archbold did not consider it outrageous for him to send secret certificates of deposit to United States Senators and Attorney-General and judges, but he did consider it utterly inexcusable for me to tell you about it. Mr. Archbold became almost angry and used nearstrong language, and I was compelled to reply to him.

I reproved Mr. Archbold very gently and for his own good. I gave him excellent advice. I told him not to lie, for if he did I had the documents to convict him. Mr. Archbold did not take my kind and well-meant advice. He would go ahead, he did lie, and here I have the documents to convict him. Mr. Archbold gave out the following statement and published it in all the papers. He said:

"I am very sure that until Hearst read the letters neither Judge Morrison nor Judge Henderson had any knowledge of my having written Governor Stone in their behalf."

Judge Morrison also declared that he knew Mr. Archbold years ago, but that he had not seen him in years, and, said Judge Morrison, "It is inexplicable that the Standard Oil man should have taken so deep an interest in my welfare."

In the light of the letter I am about to read, the explanation seems simple enough. Mr. Archbold apparently "took a deep an interest" in the matter of the appointment of Mr. Morrison to a judgeship because Mr. Morrison asked him to do so, and Mr. Morrison certainly knew of Mr. Archbold's activity in his behalf, because Mr. Archbold wrote Mr. Morrison telling him about it. You will see plainly from the first paragraph that this letter which Mr. Archbold wrote was in reply to a letter which Mr. Morrison wrote. Here is Mr. Archbold's letter:

26 Broadway, New York,
August 3, 1899.

Hon. Thoma A. Morrison, Smithport, Pa.:

My Dear Sir—I am duly in receipt of your favor of August 1st, and it has given me great pleasure to write Senators Quay and Penrose, expressing my earnest desire that it may prove possible and consistent for them to support you for the supreme judgeship.

Very truly youre,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

While Mr. Archbold studiously avoids the truth in his public communications to me or to the newspapers, he apparently did tell the truth in this letter to Judge Morrison, for here is the letter that he wrote to Senator Quay and duplicated to Senator Penrose:

Hon. M. S. Quay, Peaver, Pa.:

My Dear Senator—It gives me the greatest possible pleasure to testify to the eminent ability and fitness of the Hon. Thomas A. Morrison of Smithport, Pa., who is a candidate for a supreme Judgeship. If it proves possible, consistent for you to support him for the position, I shall be greatly pleased. His abilities are so well known that I need hardly dwell on them.

Very truly yours,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

26 Brodway, August 3, 1899.

Hon. Bois Penrose, Philadelphia, Pa.:

My Dear Senator—It gives me the greatest possible pleasure to testify to the eminent ability and fitness of the Hon. Thomas A. Morrison of Smithport, Pa., who is a candidate for a supreme judgeship. If it proves possible, consistent for you to support him for the position, I shall be greatly pleased. His abilities are so well known that I need hardly dwell on them.

Very truly yours,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

These letters to Senators Quay and Penrose are obviously written as per promise of Mr. Archbold to Mr. Morrison, and as per request of Mr. Morrison to Mr. Archbold, and still Mr. Archbold has the hardihood to come out in the public prints last Monday and declare that Judge Morrison did not even know that he (Mr. Archbold) had been active in securing his appointment.

I merely cite these facts to show the utter unreliability of any of Mr. Archbold's statements. I cannot devote the morning to Mr. Archbold's mendacity, although the opportunities are ample. I have a more important matter to discuss. I have shown heretofore the peculiar interest of the Standard Oil company in certain United States Senators and in certain Congressmen. I have shown their interest in certain attorneys-general and judges.

I intend to-night to show that the Standard Oil company takes a similar interest in newspapers and magazines and lectures and other institutions and industries that influence public sentiment.

The power of the Standard Oil company is enormous. Their systematic attention to every detail is marvelous. The thoroughness of their organization and the completeness of their plan of campaign is astonishing.

If the Standard Oil company shall succeed in securing control of the officials of the people's government, the machinery of justice and the channels of publicity, they certainly will have the people entirely at their mercy to be ruled and robbed as the Standard Oil company sees fit.

You will remember that Senator Foraker declared that one of the secret certificates of deposit which he received—the one for $50,000—was sent to him in order to secure control of a leading newspaper in Ohio. That is not my statement; it is his, and it is in all probability true.

In addition to controlling newspapers, however, I find that the Standard Oil company influences certain minor publications by contributions as the letters which show:

26 Broadway, October 10, 1902.

Mr. H. H. Edmonds, Baltimore, Md.:

Dear Sir—Responding to yours of the 9th, it gives me pleasure to inclose you herewith certificate of deposit to your favor for $3,000, covering a year's subscription to the Manufacturers' Record.

Truly yours,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

I have looked up the subscription price of the Manufacturers' Record and I find that it is $4 a year. Consequently Mr. Archbold was either subsidizing the Manufacturers' Record or he was subscribing for 750 years. There is no question of any advertising done by the Manufacturers' Record or any legitimate newspaper transaction involved. The $3,000 is distinctly termed a subscription. If it were not definitely stated as a year's subscription, so that there is no possibility of it being called pay for an advertisement, the $3,000 is a clear subsidy.

The Standard Oil is a liberal subscriber of this sort, and the object of these subscriptions is to influence these publications in advance public sentiment in favor of Standard Oil, as the following letter will show:

26 Broadway, Dec. 18, 1901.

Mr. Thomas P. Grasty, care of Buck & Prait, Room 1203, 27 N. William street, City!

Dear Mr. Grasty—I have your favor of yesterday, and beg to return you herewith the telegram from Mr. Edmonds to you. We are willing to continue the subscription of $5,000 to the Southern Farm Magazine for another year, payments to be made the same as they have been in the past, but not doubt but that the influence of your publications throughout the South is of the most helpful character. With good wishes, I am.

Very truly yours,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

I have looked up the subscription price of the Southern Farm Magazine and I find that it is fifty cents a year, so that Mr. Archbold's $5,000 was either a subsidy or a subscription for 10,000 years. As Mr. Archbold says, the $5,000 is a subscription for another year, we may conclude not only that it was a subsidy but that it followed a previous subsidy of a similar kind and amount.

The Standard Oil Company not only endeavors to influence public sentiment through magazines and newspapers, but it subsidizes teachers and lecturers to "educate" the public in the interest of the Standard Oil. The following letter is an example in point:

26 Broadway,

Professor George Gunton, 41 Union Square, City.

My Dear Professor:—Responding to your favor, it gives me pleasure to inclose you herewith certificate of deposit to your favor for $5,000 as an additional contribution 4o that agreed upon and to aid you in your most excellent work. I most earnestly hope that the way will open for an enlarged scope as you anticipate.

Very truly yours,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

It would seem likely from this letter and from the mention of an additional contribution of $5,000 that the total contribution to this professor was $10,000. Applying the same rule as heretofore, and learning that admission to the professor's lectures is 50 cents, we must conclude that Mr. Archbold was either subsidizing the professor to teach the public to love the Standard Oil, or he was purchasing a season ticket for 20,000 performances.

In the following letter is the mention of a certificate of deposit sent to the editor of a daily newspaper:

26 Brodway, Jan. 17, 1899.

Hon. W. A. Magee, Pittsburg Times, Pittsburg, Pa.:

Dear Sir—As per understanding, herewith inclosed find certificate of deposit to your order for $1,250, the receipt of which kindly acknowledge.

Truly yours,
JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

We have seen, therefore, that the Standard Oil company endeavors to influence magazines, newspapers, lecturers and every medium of publicity for their political and financial purposes.

I will now read a letter which indicates a wider and more comprehensive plan, and one of even greater danger to the free press and the free speech, which are the corner stones of our Republic. The letter is from the Standard Oil Congressional representative, Joseph C. Sibley. It is written on the letter paper of Congress and is headed:

Joseph C. Sibley, Chairman Committee on Manufacturers, House of Representatives, U.S., Washington, March 7, 1905.

My Dear A.—The illness of a member of my family has prevented my coming to New York. Senator B. was to have gone over with me. I think he will go any way as he is very anxious to. I had a conversation with an important "official" yesterday, and he told me there was only one thing to do, and that was to start a "back fire." Like myself, he is much alarmed, and as a member of the reigning family his hand and tongue are tied. He thinks the work should be done in the education of public sentiment between now and the meeting of Congress in October. It has, I think, been decided to convene Congress in extra session at that time, though the Speaker will try to have it go over until November if he can't do better. I will know in a day or two how he succeeds.

Long (Senator) and Curtis (Representative) are the strong men in the Kansas delegation. I have explained matters to them, and I think their influence will count some when they go home. Campbell is a clever boy, has no strong points yet developed. He seeks notoriety, but is harmless in himself. This agitation, in the language of the "official," "started from the top," and will run its course. It is not a deep-seated, profound conviction of wrong. The one thing is to get delay until public sentiment can be assured. I think the pendulum will swing to the other side after a while, but I do not want the devil to pay before it gets back.

An efficient literary bureau is needed, not for a day or a crisis, but a permanent and healthy control of the Associated Press and kindred avenues. It will cost money, but will be the cheapest in the end and can be made self-supporting. The next four years is, more than previous epochs, to determine the future of the country.

No man values public opinion or fears it so much as Roosevelt. No man seeks popularity so much as he. Mild reproor or criticism of his policy would nearly paralyze him. To-day he hears only the chorus of a rabble, and he thinks it is public sentiment. I don't know whether the industrial corporations and the transportation companies have enough at stake to justify a union of forces for concerted action. It seems to me necessary.

Sincerely yours,
SIBLEY.

The senator I mentioned in this letter is, of course, our old friend Joe Bailey of Texas. Without doubt, as Mr. Sibley says, Bailey would come any way. He had business there. It is impossible to open up any crooked enemy of Standard Oil association without finding Mr. Bailey in some dark corner, blinking with beady eyes at the unwelcome light.

The important part of this letter, however, is not the part that reveals Senator Bailey a Democratic friend of the Standard Oil, or Mr. Sibley, a Republican friend of the Standard Oil. It is the part which reveals the plan to control the great news organizations of the country, "The Associated Press and kindred avenues," to influence public opinion. In that way Mr. Sibley thinks the public can be deceived, and public men, like Mr. Roosevelt, who value public opinion, can be criticised and controlled.

It is undoubtedly possible for the "industrial corporations and the transportation companies" with the Standard Oil at the head, to bring about a union of forces for concerted action. That union of forces would enable them to control many of the great avenues of publicity.

Think of the joy of the Standard Oil in a "self-supporting" organization which would daily deceive all the citizens of the United States. No more subsidies to newspapers and magazines and lecturers. No more subscriptions for 10,000 years and season tickets for 20,000 performances. Merely a self-supporting or even profitable organization which, under Mr. Archbold's direction, could be brought to fabricate and falsify as glibly as he does. Perhaps the people's public servants could be controlled then without the peril of many secret certificates of deposit, and certainly any exposures of men like Foraker and Haskell would be suppressed as yellow Journalism and news not fit to print.

In complete ignorance of what was occurring, the people could be led blindly to the polls to vote for the perpetuation of a government of the Standard Oil, by the Standard Oil and for the Standard Oil.

When I was attacked by certain publications for making those Standard Oil letters public, I received help but think that the Standard Oil company has been partly successful in establishing that "self-help literary bureau" which "costs money, but is the cheapest in the end."

Mr. Grasty, to whom Mr. Archbold wrote a letter that I lately read, wrote a letter to Mr. Archbold on December 4, 1901. The letter refers to the subsidized Manufacturers' Record and says:

Dear Mr. Archbold—In the article, "Teachers vs. Doers," in tch Manufacturers' Record this week, there is a world of good common sense. Although Mr. Morgan is commended as the leader in rescuing transportation properties, and thereby meeting the needs of the country, yet some consideration is given to the powers that have expanded our commerce. Now, while it is expedient under existing conditions to do all that we can to turn the tide of anti-Morgan sentiment, nevertheless, I want to say to you that I think it would be a good thing if Mr. Morgan could be peacefully and quietly supplanted as the most conspicuous representative of financial power.

Unless you have devoted more time than so busy a man is likely to be able to spare for such a purpose, to that great mass of the public's confidence, you harm has been done by his "unduing" or by what people consider the "exposure" of his methods. But whatever we may call it, the effect of the discredit which has befallen him has been to make the public believe—or at least to take seriously—sensational stories concocted for demagogic effect, which, prior to these disclosures, were considered as unfounded and unworthy of credence. A number of my friends—men of sanity and fealere of the public pulse—have earnestly expostulated against the course we have taken in Mr. M.'s defense, saying with singular unanimity, "He doesn't deserve it and will not appreciate it."

I am telling you all this because I honestly believe that interests of such immeasurable magnitude as Mr. Morgan is supposed to dominate ought to be under control of wiser men—men with sense enough to see and avoid such palpable pitfalls as surrounded the shipbuilding deal.

A substitution of controlling power—a change of generals—seems to me the only way to escape the consequences of and head off public distrust of our great organizations and to stop the supply of fresh ammunition to the "muckraking" press.

Now, among the latter I put Theodore Roosevelt and W. R. Hearst in the same category—and Hearst today has an organization of immense efficiency, made up of first-class, high-priced brains—backed not by a barrel, but by a hogshead, and is liable to be the Democratic nominee for the presidency. That Roosevelt will be the Republican is a foregone conclusion. Now in time of depression the slogan "anything for a change," goes a long way. If a change be even possible—in my opinion it is probable—people who stand for the maintenance of American institutions and for "the greatest good to the greatest number" ought to be arranging to prevent the possibility of such a disaster at Hearst's election to the presidency.

Yours truly,
THOMAS P. GRASTY.

The only thing that the Standard Oil Company is interested in is the greatest good to Number 26 Broadway. This they manage to secure on all occasions.

I am exceedingly proud that I am one of the editors and one of the public men that the Standard Oil Company dislikes and denounces and opposes.

I do not need any certificate of character from the Standard Oil.

The disaster to Hearst's election to the presidency in 1904 was promptly averted by the Standard Oil Company, and Mr. Parker received their support.

I believe that the Standard Oil Company, through a deal, supports the Democratic party in this campaign.

Whether this is the fact or not, I know that the Standard Oil Company is in some campaigns in favor of the Democratic party and in other campaigns in favor of the Republican party.

I know, too that it has not been, and is not, and will not be in favor of the Independence party.

If you desire to rebuke this giant of greed and graft and both of the old parties that have corrupted, you should establish the Independence party and cast your votes for Thomas L. Higgen and Charles J. Sharp.

"I cannot tell you how happy I feel, but you will know. I never heard of such medicine; it is the best medicine on earth. My husband is now taking it. I will always keep Peruna in my house. Peruna is the best friend I ever had. It must be praised. It cured me."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have labored incessantly to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous efforts have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Where Pe-ru-na is Used.

MRS. MARIA GOERTZ, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes: "My husband, children and myself have used your medicine, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity.

"I was restored to health by this medicine. People ask me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh.

"My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed one hundred pounds; now I weigh one hundred and forty. Peruna quiets the nerves, and is a great specific for all forms of chronic catarrh."

HARRY LORD LUCKY ON HUNTING TRIP

Portland, Me., Oct. 31.—Harry Lord, the Red Sox star third baseman, who has been visiting at the former home of his wife in South Portland, made a hunting record for the season when he returned from the Cape Elizabeth woods last night with a bag of fourteen handsome partridges. Lord left for his home in Medford tonight after a week of hunting, during which he has been high gun in this vicinity, bagging many ducks as well as partridges and woodcock.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST DIES AND SECRETS FOR WOMEN REVEALED

It is a simple but sure method of developing the bust, arms and neck of women, who, through defect of nutrition and circulation, are humiliated by undeveloped arms, neck and bust. The treatment consists of applying a powerful but harmless nerve-stimulant to the cells of the skin, to be absorbed and utilized as nourishment to the flesh cells and tissues. Beautiful changes are wrought. Ugly, deformed women are developed into charming personages, with well rounded arms and neck and full normal bust of exquisite curve and proportion so much admired by the great actresses and society leaders. Any leading druggist will supply the ingredients to mix at home, and as they are used for various prescriptions no one need be the wiser as to what they are to be used for, which is as it should be for modest womanhood. Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces Rose Water" and "one ounce Tincture Cadomene" and five cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with Tincture Cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks, and the most beautiful development will begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts that the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

This is worth keeping, if not for yourself, for some dear friend who needs it.

Most druggists keep these ingredients on hand. If they should not be readily procured, the Prescription Products Co., of Dayton, Ohio, who prepare guaranteed extracts, essences, etc., especially for prescription filling, will doubtless supply them.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Is the original remedy that "kills the dandruff germ"

Edna D. Allen.

WITHOUT dandruff the hair must grow luxuriantly, except in chronic baldness, which is incurable. Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a germ or microbe. To cure dandruff, this germ—a tiny vegetable growth—must be destroyed and kept out of the scalp by Newbro's Herpicide.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

A woman to be pretty must have pretty hair. Beautiful locks have a subtle charm, for the poet says, "Fair tresses man's imperial race ensnare." The unpoetic and intensely real dandruff microbe makes the hair dull, brittle and lusterless, with later dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. Newbro's Herpicide destroys this enemy of beauty and enables the hair to resume its natural luster and abundance. Almost marvelous results sometimes follow the continued use of Herpicide. Overcomes excessive oiliness and makes the hair light and fluffy. It contains no grease or dye. Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Discriminating ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms for its almost magical effect upon the scalp, and also for its excellence as a regular hair dressing. It is delightfully fragrant and refreshing.

"I have found Newbro's Herpicide excellent for the hair. The first application stops itching of the scalp and it leaves the hair soft and silky."

HEARST SHOWS STANDARD GRIP ON PRESS BY NEW NOTES

Tremendous Audiences in the Bronx Hear More Archbold Revelations.

SHOT AT JUDGE MORRISON

Subsidizing Newspapers to Mold Public Opinion Proven by Oil Letters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—In anticipation of further revelations concerning the correspondence of John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil Company tremendous audiences packed Carnegie Hall and Crotona Casino, in the Bronx, to-night at the final rallies of the campaign for Thomas L. Hisgen and John Temple Graves, who head the national ticket of the Independence party, and Clarence J. Shearn, its nominee for Governor.

Mr. Hisgen, Mr. Graves, Mr. Shearn and Mr. Hearst, who spoke, were received by ovations that indicated a surprisingly large vote for the nominees of the new party on Tuesday.

Mr. Shearn aroused the audiences to great enthusiasm by his review of the campaign made by Hughes and Chanler Col. Graves and former Congressman M W. Howard of Alabama, also stirred the audiences by their appeals.

Mr. Hearst read letters bearing on the activity of the Standard Oil in political matters and designed to show the method by which the corporation sought to manipulate public sentiment, including the buying the press.

Before launching off on this topic, however, Mr. Hearst took a parting shot at Judge Morrison and John D. Archbold for the latter's denial that the Federal grand jury knew anything of its (Archbold's) intercession in his behalf.

"DO TRUSTS HELP YOU? THIS IS VITAL ISSUE," SAYS HISGEN IN SPEECH

New York, Oct. 31.—Thomas L. Hisgen at Carnegie Hall and Crotona Casino to-night spoke as follows:

Within a few days the people of the great city of New York and of the whole country will be called upon to cast their ballots for a President of the United States. While it makes no less true that there is no great issue between the two old parties, there is a great issue before the well-defined issue before the American people.

That issue, cleared of the verbal debris heaped upon it by the partisan politicians, has crystallized into this query:

"Are you for the trusts or are you against the trusts?" That is the issue to be met at the ballot box on election day.

It cannot be evaded. Every American citizen will be registers. Its vote will register his conviction either for or against the Standard Oil and all the other great trusts which sold in their remorseless grasp the necessities of life, and while in this campaign are stepping out in the highways masked as friends of the people, but making a desperate effort to rob them of their suffrages.

It has been the privilege of the Independence party in this campaign to tear the masks from the faces of some of these political traitors and to lay bare the schemes of America's most powerful and organized trusts in connection with them.

We have gained from the beginning of our campaign that both of the old parties are dominated by the same malign influence—the Standard Oil trust. A study of the platforms of the two parties tells the story, and the revelations which have since convulsed the country—made by William Randolph Hearst, the candidate of the Independence party—have served to clinch the story as a startling truth in the eyes of the thinking people of our land.

In its platform the Republican party declares that it has been responsible for every wonderful prosperity that this country during the last fifty years. Regarding the claim that the Republican party has been responsible for the wonderful development and growth of our country, but it declares audaciously that it is the only party that can now restore prosperity. I believe, my friends, that the time has come when the people will stand and should see to it that no political party shall contain within power to be able to restore prosperity or continue a panic at will.

No party should be allowed to attain such a position that it can hold over the heads of voters the direful threat that unless they support it at the polls hard times will follow.

In the same platform, the grand old party, with pretended impudence, declares that it stands for equal opportunity. Do I stand for equal opportunity in politics? Ask Governor Hughes of New York, who aspired to the nomination for President at the Chicago convention. Ask Speaker Cannon, who would also have been willing to make the race for this exalted position.

I would that Speaker Cannon could answer that question himself before the audience to-night, were it possible, for I do that I fear it would be too profane for an occasion of this kind.

Taft Promise to Trusts.

In his letter of acceptance Mr. Taft tried to allay the feeling of the corporations by telling them that they need have no fear from him.

He declared that the chief functions of the next administration would be distinguished from that which had preceded by President Roosevelt. In other words, Mr. Taft assured the trusts that they were to be let alone.

This promise was made good in the nomination of Sherman, a trust man, as Taft's running mate. It was made good in the placing of Dr. Parr, the notorious lobbyist against the interests of the people, at the head of the Republican speakers' bureau at the beginning of the campaign. But Dr. Parr dashed before the Independence party got to him.

The climax, however, was furnished in Akron, O., a few days ago, when President Taft's remarks in that city left no room for doubt. It was demonstrated that the Independent candidate is not only in favor of the trusts, but he is opposed to organized labor. Mr. Barber said:

"Labor unions today are composed largely of anarchists, socialists and demagogues."

Treat President Barber said it. Treat Candidate Sherman, on the same platform, nodiscussed in the statement. Comment is unnecessary.

If you vote for Taft and Sherman you vote for the trusts.

Haskell Gone Beyond.

When the distinguished leader of the Democratic party surrendered his principles to the Parker country at the head four years ago, the people of the country were afraid they had lost the champion of their cause. When they read the platform evolved at Denver they knew that their fears were realized.

The name of Haskell, the Standard tool, had cut out and cut down the Nebraska principles of Bryan. Impudent youth, and it was left for the impudence itself to preside over the despoiled of the sylvan solitude of his Lilliputian home. The initiative and referendum, public ownership of railroad, free silver and other principles, through the advocacy of which Mr. Bryan became famous, all were lost and buried in the grave over which was placed a metal monument bearing as its epitaph something like that written by the husband who buried a wife and sons and daughter inconsolable. He wrote:

Not only did Haskell mold the platform of his candidate, but he was able in a position to milk the trusts for his candidate.

Gompers and Oil "Ads."

Then the Independence party, through Mr. Hearst, stepped in, told the truth about Mr. Haskell, and he went back to Oklahoma to start a personal liberty and legal bureau.

ATHLETIC MAID TO WED DARTMOUTH'S FOOTBALL COACH

Miss Helen Raymond.

GRIDIRON STAR TO MARRY SALEM GIRL

Dr. John C. O'Connor of Dartmouth Wins Miss Helen J. Raymond as Bride.

Salem, Oct. 31.—Dartmouth's famous football coach, Dr. John C. O'Connor, of Manchester, N. H., one of the most daring and brilliant players ever ever exhibited the Dartmouth team, will wed Miss Helen Jackson Raymond, of Salem, in the late afternoon of November 17, just three days after the Dartmouth's team has tackled the Harvard eleven at the Stadium. Dr. O'Connor says the date was arranged as a grand coronation of the '08 team's football prowess and especially in honor of the coming victory over the Crimson.

Miss Raymond was still a student at Bradford Mass when she first met Dr. O'Connor. He was then a young interne at the Salem Hospital. The young physician was recently graduated from Dartmouth, where he established a record at end on the football team that made him one of the ineligible candidates for the All-American team. Miss Raymond, too, had a record she had not only been salutatorian of her class at the Salem High School, but was an high athletic honors as well, and at Bradford Mass., while in her Sophomore year, she was recognized as the champion golfer and tennis player of the college.

Dr. O'Connor was captain of the Green team in 1901 and he made a brilliant and energetic leader. Having earned the distinction of making the only touch in the freshman year he continued to acquire laurels by his work throughout his college career. He had captained the Haverhill football team in 1905 and was the unanimous choice of Dartmouth for the honor in 1906. He has done fine work this year with the Dartmouth team. Dr. O'Connor is planning to make his marriage a grand celebration in honor of expected victories over Princeton and Harvard, which his managers tackle next.

DEFENCE RESTS IN MORSE TRIAL

New York, Oct. 31.—Both prosecution and defence in the trial of Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis, charged with violating the national banking laws, rested their case this afternoon, and court was adjourned until Monday, when summing arguments will be made. It is expected to place the case in the jury's hands by Monday night.

Charles W. Morse throughout one court day and part of another has been on the witness stand in the U. S. court house, when behalf, in his trial with A. H. Curtis on charges of violating the national banking laws.

Before the trial was resumed to-day it developed that Mr. Stimson had attempted to secure a postponement of the proceedings. The cross-examination of Mr. Morse when the defendant was placed Mr. Stimson announced that he had further questions, and the request was given to the hands of counsel for the defence. Judge Lacombe overruled Curtis, asked such a few perfunctory questions that Mr. McFarland declared that for Morse began to clear up a few loose ends of the prosecution's case.

Morse said he knew the grand jury had given an indictment were pending, nevertheless considered himself morally responsible for the Knickerbocker Trust Co. Kellogg, an expert accountant, testified that he found a shortage of $1,000,000 in the books of the Bank of North America.

Between 9 and 10 p. m. on Oct. 20, 1906, at the time it was claimed the directors joined with the bank in a guaranty, Mr. Morse was in bank's quarters. On the 20th, however, Mr. Kellogg's tracing of the $1,000,000 shortage declared Morse owed $277,000.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stimson, Kellogg said Morse loans between October 1 and November 1 amounted to $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 and that, with credits, Morse owed the bank under $1,000,000 or under $500,000.

Kate A. Wilson, the private secretary of Mr. Morse and the mother of Mrs. A. Wilson, of Mr. Morse, Curtis on the stand. She identified a letter of April 13, 1907, directed to her by Mr. Morse, addressed to Calvin Austin. She had also received letters from Mr. Morse personally.

It developed him that his $100,000 note discounted in the national bank of North America, a fact not known to Mr. Austin, according to the case, demonstrating. She said Mr. Austin read the letter and made no reply.

Mr. Heyburn's speech appears on prevailing page.

Charcoal Removes Stomach Poisons

Pure Charcoal Will Absorb One Hundred Times Its Volume of Poisonous Gases.

Charcoal was made famous by the old monks of Spain, who cured all manner of stomach, liver, blood and bowel troubles by this simple remedy.

One little nervous Frenchman held forth its virtues before a famous convention of European physicians and surgeons. Secheyron was his name. He was odd, quaint and very determined. His brothers in medicine laughed at his claims. To prove he swallowed two grains of strychnine, enough to kill three men, and ate some charcoal. The doctors laughed like mad, but he did not even have to go to bed. The charcoal killed the effects of the strychnine and Secheyron was famous. Ever since that day physicians have used it. Run impure water through charcoal and you have a pure, delicious drink.

Bad breath, gastritis, bowel gases, torpid liver, impure blood, etc., give way before the action of charcoal.

It is really a wonderful adjunct to nature and is a most inexhaustible storehouse of health for the man or woman who suffers from gases or impurities of any kind.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal, sweetened to a palatable state with honey.

Two or three of them cure an ordinary case of bad breath. They should be used after every meal, especially if one's breath is prone to be impure.

These little lozenges have nothing to do with medicine. They are just sweet, fresh willow, charcoal, a nicety for charcoal making and fragrant honey, the product of the bee. Thus every ingredient comes to man from the lap of nature.

The only secret lies in the Stuart process of compressing these simple substances into a hard tablet lozenge, so that age, evaporation or decay may not assail their curative qualities.

You may take as many of them as you wish, and the more you take the quicker will you remove the effects of bad breath and impurities arising from a decayed or decaying meal. They assist digestion, purify the blood and help the intestines and bowels throw off all waste matter.

Go to your druggist at once and buy a package of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price 25 cents. You will soon be told by your friends that your breath is not so bad as it was. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

600 NUNS, PRIESTS AND MONKS IN GRAND CHURCH PAGEANT

Solemn Pontifical Mass in the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Washington street yesterday to implore God's blessing on the religious men and women working in the archdiocese and His Mercy on the souls of the religious who labored here and died marked the celebration of the fourth day of commemorative of the one hundredth establishment of the See of Boston.

Thirty-three religious orders from forty-three institutions were represented in the assemblage of 600.

Eleven religious orders of men and twenty of women, clad in the vestments and insignia of their societies presented a remarkable scene.

The members of religious orders were seated in the sanctuary of the cathedral.

The general body of the church was occupied by a host of visitors.

Archbishop Attends.

The solemn pontifical mass which commemorated Religious Orders Day was celebrated by Right Rev. G. A. Guertin, Bishop of Manchester.

Bishop Guertin's assistants were, Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston College, assistant priest; Rev. Henri de la Chanelle, S. M., rector of the Church of Our Lady of Victories, Lake, a subdeacon of the mass, and Rev. J. M. McRory of Lowell, sub-deacon.

Archbishop William H. O'Connell occupied the throne during the celebration of the mass. His chaplains were Rev. James T. O'Reilly of the Augustinian Order of Lawrence and Rev. Father J. Sadlier, a Franciscan friar from St. Leonard's Church, North End.

Rev. Father Lafarge of New York took for his text the fourth verse of the forty-third Psalm: "Magnify the Lord with me and let us exalt His name together." He said, in part:

"My Dear Brothers and Sisters—It is not my purpose today to draw out in any manner the wonderful history of the institutions that have been under your care during the two centuries and a half. The mustard seed planted in 1606 by Bishop Laval has deep root and has spread its branches through the length and breadth of the land. The lowly and limited zone which that seed was sown has grown into a great army of brave women.

Lauds Work of Orders.

"The idea of the supernatural has been fading away and growing dimmer, and how, right here in Boston, for nearly too years there was scarcely a trace of the Church that was once dazzling in the leaden mists of heresy, hiding from the God-given light of eternity, hiding them up from God. And that force has been the power of prayer before which the gates of hell, the religious communities of this great diocese.

"The religious life that a man or a woman attempts to live does not destroy nature or natural instincts, but it gives them the power to live above the clods and restraint. This is the reason that has been taught by the religious communities of Boston here in Boston during the past 100 years, the lesson that there is something greater than the glint of gold, that there is a treasure more precious than the world can offer, the lesson that man has two sides, one of the body, one of the soul, one of the earth that dies at the tomb and one that begins to live at the grave. And this lesson, your very existence has been an object lesson for 100 years.

"The various religious orders represented and the churches and institutions from which they come are as follows:

RESPECTED BY HIS FOES

Avoiding the Spotlight, He Has Quietly but Effectively Stood for Great Things.

Preliminary polls of votes in various parts of the State indicate that the surprise of the campaign in Massachusetts will be furnished by the vote for William N. Osgood for Governor.

It has become evident that a remarkably large number of Republicans are planning to express their disapproval of Eben S. Draper and of Republican machine rule by voting for Mr. Osgood. On the other hand thousands of Democrats, discouraged by the weakness of the Democratic candidate and disgusted with the internal trade that has demoralized the party, will mark their ballots for Mr. Osgood as the surest way of bringing about a reorganization on a firmer basis.

For the benefit of all the voters who may desire to know exactly the kind of a man Mr. Osgood is before they cast their ballots next Tuesday, the American prints this character study, written by a newspaper man of broad experience, who has known intimately the prominent officials and party leaders in Massachusetts and in Boston in the last twenty years.

By ROSS HAVEN.

WILLIAM N. OSGOOD, Independence party candidate for Governor is a modest man and, people said, has never put unnecessary value on the tools of the trade.

Not in spite of his modest disposition and mistrustfulness to invite the attention of the grandstand critics thus he chides a half across the land or the Republican discovered, he has the kind of oil well and gasoline stuffing that invites real attention on the part of the public.

It is a pretty safe bet that every man who knows him and every one in a position who would care to has the characters and the opinions which go to make or respect in a Governor of the state.

He is a straightforward, strong man to talk to. More than fifty years old, if he has a deep vein in his head it would puzzle the opportunity provided by the intimate exposition of a barber to reveal it. He is a dark, complexioned person, with eyes and a heavy mustache that inside no color, creating here for safe starting. He is deep chested, broad shouldered and looks athletic, although far from the build which suggests a Marathon winner.

When Mr. Osgood begins to talk to you it does not take long to begin discernment to discover that he is a man of conviction. He does not bristle with any subject that gets into his mind. He digs into the matter to the eyes, dissects and analyzes it, and when at length he has formed an opinion upon a matter that view is based upon such an intensive, comprehensive knowledge of the subject that he can present it with force, logic and conviction that will inspire unqualified respect even if you chance to differ.

Profound Student of Law.

Being a profound student of law, he has since got a strangle hold on it. You can not find a man between treeless Pemberton and the big lore in Hosmer Mountain who is less of the typical politician. The real, genuine politician does not care anything about principle. If principle is a handicap in a campaign he just makes to win. With him it is like the old school of Birmingham prize fighters, whose motto was always "win, tie or wrangle. Although Mr. Osgood wants his cause, what ever it may be, to succeed, he is mighty particular that I shall win along the lines of law and order and have no "cross locks" in the people, as it were saying, as a permanent benefit to the community. He is a legal old bird.

You can't get him to be specious and merely plausible. What's the evidence of wrong and how can it be righted is the process of legislation? That is the question with this leader who, in mind and blood has inherited through a long line of Anglo-Saxon ancestors a profound regard for constitutional processes and the principles upon which the government of this republic was founded.

When Mr. Osgood talks it is a quiet, well-modulated voice and you can feel the sincerity in every tone without a trace of oratory. He is not a spellbinder or a spouter of platitudes. He is a thinker. He was once asked why he did not attend more banquets where he could thus afford the best opportunity to get his views before the people, as is usually done by candidates for office. He replied that he would rather meet the people in their own homes, where he could talk to them quietly and at length.

No Press Agent for Him.

When an interviewer goes to get Mr. Osgood to tell what he has done he finds the substantial candidate with slight appreciation of the value of a press agent. He will not admit that he has ever done anything but unobtrusively practice law and take some interest in public questions. But when the cross-examination proceeds and the truth is told in a quiet, simple way, utterly devoid of any desire to get a pat on the back, it is discovered that he has been a strong constructive force in Massachusetts legislation.

Many of the best laws now in force in behalf of organized labor and in favor of the people have known no father but his performance. Most men who do things, the big, great things that build the state, they have modified what they have done and making no effort to get credit for it, but the sight of William N. Osgood. He takes no candidate's name in vain, but he accomplished more for his own good deeds travel along without any trumpet.

Some professional friends of labor try to stir up rancor on the part of organized labor. But that isn't the way this friend goes about the task of improving the condition of wage-earners. He has nothing to say about the unfavorable decisions of the courts in labor cases. He treats every question in a kindly way and has a sense of equity as strong as his dislike of injustice. That makes his service is as much coherent as due to organized labor as to any other. He would be just as fair and equitable in doing justice to the two banks. He can see also what is best for his much labor lauds to be the constructive law.

Fought for Picketing Bill.

He has seen a bond-labor when it came to attempts to get a picketing bill over the heads of the Massachusetts Legislature. He has been a pioneer cutting a path through the jungle for the extinguishment of the writ of injunction in labor disputes and the referendum in the matter of the power of courts appointed thereto to limit in the case of injunctions in labor disputes and to strike. But he has a profound respect for the courts, which is very natural in a lawyer, with reverence for his bread in his mouth.

He was tried to get things started in the process of legislation, and, breathing the temperate atmosphere of peace and moderation, has made many a fight on Beacon Hill that helped along the good work, even though temporary defeats stayed progress.

Some folks think that the main business of legislation is to see that property gets all that is coming to it, and all the gold and choral increment it is safe to rack on. But he is a candidate for Governor who also thinks men are of more account than money. He is of the conviction that the American law there has crept insidiously a disposition to protect property to the disadvantage of personal rights.

"You are a great friend to the laboring man," was said to Mr. Osgood.

"Yes," said Mr. Osgood, "I am that; but when I say it I want you to understand my definition of a laboring man. Whoever a laboring man I don't limit the definition to those who work with their hands as a matter of fact, abounded at that only. All men who do work are laboring men, and in my view the greatest laboring man is he man who does the most good."

Mr. Osgood has been a pioneer in the fight for the initiative and referendum, and among his associates were Frank K. Foster, George E. McNeil, Professor Parsons, Henry Abrahams and Henry Endicott. We were before the resolutions committee of both the Democratic and Republican parties in 1906 and urged them to incorporate in their platforms the Democratic party favored the adoption of the referendum, the Republicans interpreted in their platform as a slightly more liberal plank advocating both the initiative and the referendum in local affairs.

What I thought on the question I embodied in a pamphlet which was published and widely circulated by the leaders."

When the initiative principle finally gets into the constitution of Massachusetts one time with men who made the hew the tail of the men who will deserve great credit for it is Mr. Osgood, although he claims none of the kind of his own behalf. He is the author of the bill which, year after year, was presented to the Legislature, only to be lost taxes. Finally it passed both the House and the Senate one year and the House the next, being killed in the Senate in the second attempt to pass it.

On State House Commission.

On Beacon Hill Mr. Osgood was always regarded with deep respect even by legislators who would not vote in favor of the measures advocated by him, solely through his sense of public spirit. The respect he had gained at the State House was shown by Governor Bates when he made him a member of the committee appointed to consider legislation between employers and employees." It was an honor to be a member of that committee. It comprised, besides Mr. Osgood, Carroll D. Wright, Henry Sterling, secretary of the Boston Typographical Union; Royal Robbins, president of the American Watch Company of Waltham, and Professor David R. Dewey, who occupied the chair of political economy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mr. Osgood was the author of the minority report regarding court injunctions in labor disputes and he drafted an act to limit before and limit the power of a court to enjoin workingmen in such disputes.

This act was the beginning of the fight for enactment of what is now known as the Pickering Bill. Many say that Mr. Osgood is the father of this movement, but he claims no such credit.

Personal Rights of Men.

"I do not know whether anything of the kind was attempted before," he said, "and I do not know that the matter does not interest me much. If good can be accomplished, the doing of it is of much more consequence than the identity of anybody who does it. I was actuated in presenting the minority report by the belief that courts of equity had possibly departed in the matter of injunctions in labor disputes from their original purpose to protect the weak against the wealthy and the weak against the strong. The original purpose of courts was to protect personal rights rather than property rights, which, it seemed to me, had always been properly and adequately guarded under the common law.

"At the present time the courts may be open to the criticism that the tendency is to give more consideration to property rights than to those of the person. I insist as strongly as any lawyer can that property rights shall be ample respected, but I am also strongly of the opinion that personal rights should be equally considered by the courts—and possibly slightly favored."

But one of the successful constructive acts of Mr. Osgood to his [illegible] devoted and unremunerated service [illegible] drafting, while a member of the [illegible] of the Workingman's Compensation [illegible]

"Under the workings of the Employers' Liability act in this country as [illegible] by the reports of the companies which [illegible] carried against loss to employees under [illegible] operation," said Mr. Osgood, "it was found that the litigations and attendant expenses ate up seventy per cent. of the amounts collected for injured employees. But under per cent. of the moneys paid annually by employers for injuries sustained by workingmen finally got to the latter.

"But the Workingman's Compensation Act, and I suppose you may call me the father of it, if you insist, for it is found that almost per cent. of the money paid by employers for injuries sustained by those they employ really go to employees. Only ten per cent. of the total amount collected under the law is eaten up by expenses.

"Under the common law and the employers' liability act it was found that in 80 per cent. of the cases no liability could be fixed against either side, and of the remaining cases the employee would win in about 10 per cent. and the employers in about 10. Under the compensation act an industrious employee is sure to be paid a certain amount, and that makes it of advantage to employee as a whole, even if the amount received is not as large as it might have been under litigation, because of the uncertainty of liability act."

Mr. Osgood's fight at the state House in behalf of another act which, though amended, is now law, is fresh in the public mind. It was he who presented to the 1906-1907 Legislatures a bill to protect the borrowers of small sums from Money Sharks. Mr. Osgood has also labored with characteristic unselfishness for the enactment of the public opinion bill and not a few other measures.

JOKE OF BOY PROVES TO BE DEATH-DEALING

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 31.—Albert Bell, twelve, was shot and instantly killed by his sixteen-year-old brother Raymond while hunting in Wildwood Park here. While the brothers on a hunting expedition were [illegible] other boys, one of whom, without saying anything to any one, slipped a cartridge into the rifle, which was the only weapon they had. DEMOCRATS

THESE ARE POSITIVE FACTS.

They Refute Completely the Old Republican Cry.

JOHN F. CRONIN

and the unanimous nominee of the Democratic convention. The Republicans, in order to obtain this office, are raising the same old cry. "Keep the courts out of politics." To show you how they raised it in the past against Campbell, Fitzgerald and Dolan, let me quote:

The Republican Transcript, on Oct. 29, 1904, said of Mr. Francis A. Campbell: "He was nominated by the worst end of his party and is its candidate for the clerkship."

The Republican Transcript said, on Nov. 3, 1904: "It would certainly be a humiliation that no loyal Bostonian would care to face should the State's greatest court have as the chief of its clerical force the least experienced and capable officer of this class in the entire Commonwealth."

The Republican Journal, Nov. 5, 1904, said: "Voters of Suffolk County who want the clerkship of the Superior Court turned into politics, and unsavory politics at that, will vote for Mr. Campbell."

That's What They Said of Francis A. Campbell

After four years' service the Finance Commission said of Mr. Campbell, after enumerating the reforms in his department:

"The results of those changes are a more scientific distribution of labor, better discipline, and a higher efficiency in the forces as a whole; an adequate system of keeping books, accounts and records. Increased receipts, and improved methods of securing supplies and printing, greater convenience to the bar and improved service to the public."

The Herald of Oct. 2, 1906, said of the nomination of Mr. W. T. A. Fitzgerald as Register of Deeds: "This time the burden of narrow-minded, selfish partisanship rests entirely on the shoulders of the Democrats, who refuse to vote for an efficient public officer out of his position so that a Democrat with no special fitness for the place may be given an opportunity to draw a salary from the public."

That's What They Said of W. T. A. Fitzgerald

The Finance Commission, reporting on the value of Mr. Fitzgerald's services, said: "Since Jan. 2, 1907, when the present Register began the performance of his duties, many improvements have been made in the service and methods generally with a resulting financial gain forthcoming."

When Arthur W. Dolan was nominated for Register of Probate, the Republican Advertiser said, Nov. 5, 1907: "No reason whatever has been advanced outside of the machine's determination to grab the county offices, why Dolan should be put in Montague's place."

That's What They Said of Arthur W. Dolan

After his first year in office, the Journal, of Oct. 7, 1908, says of Mr. Dolan: "Register Dolan is a man of the highest character and has proved a progressive and competent official. In the office of Register he has displayed executive qualities which made him a conspicuous success, and a remarkably capable President of the Common Council. He deserves to be unanimously re-elected."

DEMOCRATS OF SUFFOLK COUNTY

The Republican county ring is so anxious to get the office of clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court into their hands that they are saying some things about John F. Cronin, the regular Democratic nominee, that they said about other Democratic nominees for county offices during the past three years.

IT IS THE SAME OLD REPUBLICAN CRY

And the Democratic voters will not be fooled by it now any more than they were when Messrs. Campbell, Fitzgerald and Dolan were nominated and elected. They have made ideal and competent public officers, and so will John F. Cronin, nominated unanimously by the Democratic party to succeed John Noble, a Democrat, as clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court. John F. Cronin is an experienced lawyer, a graduate of the Boston Public Schools, of Harvard University, a member of the Massachusetts Bar and Boston Bar Association, a member of the United States Circuit Court Bar, and an able administrator. There is no patronage in the office which he seeks. The small clerical force was appointed by former Clerk Noble, a Democrat. Remember that, and don't be misled by a cry raised by the Republican county ring to help their partisan Republican nominee.

You! Dyspeptics Read

What An Eminent Medical Man Says Dyspepsia Really Is. Then Gives Hope.

"The affection called Dyspepsia is the greatest torment of civilized life, and is to be considered rather as an unnatural functional difficulty than as a structural disease."

The same authority has classified dyspepsia thus: The first form due to relations with other organs which act in a morbid and unhealthy state, which is characterized as a reflex action. Of such are the pains which act in a morbid and unhealthy state, which is characterized as a reflex action. Of such are the pains which originate in the stomach, and vomiting caused by irritation of brain, lungs, liver or uterus.

The second form is caused by scanty supply of gastric juice, made evident by slowness of digestion, long retention of food in the stomach, distress for a long time after meals, accompanied by weighty and uneasy feelings at pit of stomach, decomposition of food in alimentary canal causing fetid and foul gases and the appearance of undigested food in the evacuations from bowels.

The third and last form of dyspepsia, according to this renowned medical light, is that which accompanied some abnormal quality of the gastric juice, combined with a partial paralysis of the stomach's muscles so that this organ cannot sufficiently mix the food with the digestive fluids.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will remedy each condition of a stomach afflicted with dyspepsia as above described.

These tablets contain digestive agents which act with or without the aid of the stomach. One grain of an ingredient used in these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food, and if necessary will do it in a glass vial so that the digestion can be seen by the human eye.

They help the stomach, enrich the blood, revitalize the gastric juices, give strength to the alimentary nerves and glands. They are recommended by every druggist and 40,000 physicians who use and prescribe them. AUERBACH IN AUTO TOUR STORMS KELIHER WARDS

In a whirlwind tour of Boston's wards last night, crowned in most of the wards by enthusiastic audiences, James T. Auerbach, independent candidate for Governor, in a North Ender, against John Keliher, successful candidate for the State Senate, made a record for himself and 1 Congress.

In all, nine speeches were made and extended ovations received by the candidate, the strongholds of Keliher, Wards 7, 9 and 12, were included.

While in these wards Mr. Auerbach was assailed with questions and heckled by Keliher's home ward—his automobile party was followed by a band of 15 men from the North End, in charlestown, and in East Boston. Mr. Auerbach faced enthusiastic audiences, and the closing points in his speech were cheered time and with frequent and generous applause.

Keliher Men Interrupt.

The tour opened at 7:45 o'clock in Ward 12, at the corner of Washington and East Brookline streets, the home ward, though not voting ward, of Keliher. "Tell us something real about him," shouted a Keliher supporter from the 300 or more gathered on the corner.

"Yes, I'll tell you something real" answered Mr. Auerbach. "I will tell you that John A. Keliher never worked in his life except to work for the grand trusts and the corporations of the country that prey upon the interests of the people. These trusts and corporations have been the friends of John A. Keliher and because they have been the friends of John A. Keliher he has been able to get along without doing an honest day's work and I don't make this statement without having able to back it up.

"There has been a measure of interest in the session submitted for the vote of John A. Keliher that he has opposed. He opposed the bill to establish a uniform rate of two cents a mile. He opposed the bill seeking an investigation of telephone service and he presented a petition in the CoNgress calling to partsuating the system of injunctions so that a man guilty of a week's woman to be sent to jail even without a hearing of a trial."

Invasion of Ward 9.

Interruptions from all about the auto came to Mr. Auerbach, and the many questions put to him were promptly answered. As he sped away in his automobile, hostile though its auditors were in Ward 12, many cheered without being able to check it up.

In Ward 9 Keliher's home ward, a large audience met the auto at the corner of Decatur street and Harrison avenue.

It was a hostile gathering from the first, but undeterred, Mr. Auerbach flayed Keliher as he has flayed him during the past week and declared that right in his home ward was the place where he was to defend himself, his own record. Interruptions were frequent and Keliher supporters surged about the auto.

The efforts of a policeman to have the crowd preserve order and allow Mr. Auerbach to proceed proved unavailing.

"I simply want a hearing," said Mr. Auerbach. "And I want to tell the truth just as I have been telling it during this campaign. If I misrepresent any of the relations, but give me a respectful hearing."

Showered with Stones.

The crowd, however, refused to preserve any semblance of order, but Mr. Auerbach continued with his speech. Charging that the disturbers were "just the kind of thugs, thieves, reformers and ballot box stuffers that Keliher has in his party" and declaring that the Keliher party were assisted with a corruption fund from the street railway, Mr. Auerbach was showered with stones, one of the occasioning a cut on the head.

In Ward 7, at the corner of Broadway and Dorchester avenue, Mr. Auerbach received another lively reception. It was made of some of his audience did not permit Mr. Auerbach to speak. Many of the men were Keliher men, a delegation of Mexican Keliher men having arrived on the scene. Cheers for Auerbach and for Keliher were answered by cries of derision, and the cheers for Mr. Auerbach were in Ward 12 and in Ward 9 were answered with many and varied personal epithets.

The next speech was delivered at the corner of Sagamore and Mortimer streets, Ward 8, and a large and enthusiastic audience greeted Mr. Auerbach. "That's right," "You've got it" and "Give 'em hell" were the comments from the gathering of ward workingmen who made up the audience in Ward 8.

Welcome in Ward 6.

Speaking from Ward 8, the next address was delivered in Bengal square in Ward 6 in the west end. Mr. Auerbach's address was enthusiastically received. It was one of the largest gatherings of the evening. The audience was composed largely of voters reference which Mr. Auerbach made to Mayor Fitzgerald's record as a consistent champion and with three cheers for Fitzgerald and three for Mr. Auerbach three scores of voters pressed about his automobile and with cheers and hand shakes part at the hello that Tuesday's election will see the Democratic ticket swept as it never was before in Ward 6.

The next speech was delivered at 9 o'clock, was the most joyful sought by the candidate, and was delivered to the most enthusiastic audience that assembled. Mr. Auerbach and Mr. Keliher practically faced each other in this part of the ward, the Congressman Keliher even against the bill to provide for the relief of the Boston Terminal Company, which Mr. Auerbach declared was against the interests of the people. Mr. Auerbach was a sympathetic audience and the cheers for him were spontaneous and continually applauded.

In Hayes square, Ward 3, Charlestown, another large crowd greeted Mr. Auerbach. He was introduced by Mr. Hayes and presented the record of Congressman Keliher in the matter of the bill against the bill which sought to modify the law requiring that locomotives are now issued and workingmen are subjected to the hazard of being killed on a trial, but others without even knowing that they have been charged with any crime.

Scores Keliher Vote.

At 9:30 o'clock the Auerbach party reached the corner of Sullivan square and Medford street. Here a large crowd assembled and Mr. Auerbach in a tribute to speed dwelt upon the record of Congressman Keliher had cast against the bill providing for the relief of the Boston Terminal Company, which Mr. Auerbach declared would be a great benefit to the people of Boston. Mr. Auerbach referred to Congressman Keliher's record in the matter of the Navy Yard at the beginning of his civil service career and to his record in the Navy Yard at the present time. It was a sympathetic and enthusiastic audience in Ward 4, and cheer after cheer greeted the speaker.

The last rally of the night took place in Central square, East Boston, and here it is conceded, and it brought the largest attendance and the most enthusiastic of the evening. Fully 500 voters, many of them employes of the Navy Yard, assembled about the automobile of Mr. Auerbach and the candidate for Governor was introduced by Mr. Auerbach. Mr. Auerbach referred to the record of Congressman Keliher in the matter of the Navy Yard and to the fact that Mr. Keliher had voted against the bill providing for the relief of the Boston Terminal Company. Mr. Auerbach was given a hearing and was frequently applauded. Mr. Auerbach was given a hearing and was frequently applauded. Mr. Auerbach will speak in Faneuil hall on Tuesday next.

At 10:15 Mr. Auerbach had addressed over 2,000 voters.

ROUSING WELCOME HOME IS PLANNED FOR HIGGEN.

Neighbors in Connecticut Valley Will Greet Candidate at Stirring Rallies.

GRAND CAMPAIGN WIND-UP

Greenfield, Northampton, Holyoke and Springfield to Hold Big Mass Meetings.

Springfield, Oct. 31.—The citizens of western Massachusetts are planning a tremendous ovation for Thomas L. Higgen, the Lawrence party nominee for President of the United States, and for the whole State ticket, upon the completion of Mr. Higgen's speaking tour in the Connecticut Valley. Up and down the Connecticut Valley Thomas L. Higgen is regarded as one of the leading citizens of western New England. His fight against the Standard Oil Trust has stamped him as a business man of ability, and his neighbors are enthusiastic over the splendid campaign he has been making.

A series of rallies will be held in the Connecticut Valley, beginning with the Monday afternoon rally in Greenfield and ending with a reception and rally at the Auditorium in Springfield.

The Greenfield rally will be presided over by Mayor Wells Wilson, and Chief Justice John Aiken, and treasurer of the Greenfield Savings Bank.

Northampton and Holyoke.

At the Northampton rally the speakers will probably be Mr. Higgen, John A. Coutant, local Democratic candidate for mayor of Boston, Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, probably ex-Congressman M. W. Howard of Alabama, and others. The Holyoke rally promises to be one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the campaign. Democratic Chairman Keliher once against the bill providing for the relief of the Boston Terminal Company, which Mr. Auerbach declared would be a great benefit to the people of Boston. Mr. Auerbach referred to Congressman Keliher's record in the matter of the Navy Yard at the beginning of his civil service career and to his record in the Navy Yard at the present time. "BOTH OLD PARTIES DODGING"---OSGOOD

Democrats and Republicans Trying to Wash Their Hands of Oil Stains.

Lawrence, Oct. 31.—In a ringing speech in Lawrence City Hall tonight William N. Osgood of Lowell, candidate for Governor on the Independence League ticket, flayed both the old parties for their records in both State and National matters.

Mr. Osgood dwelt particularly on the corporation affiliations of the Republican candidate for Governor and head of a powerful corporation, and dealt telling thrusts at the Democratic party and platform as well. He was vigorously applauded.

Mr. Osgood was the principal speaker at the Independence League rally. There was a good attendance when the gathering was called to order at 8 o'clock by Patrick Calnan, one of the local leaders in the Independence League movement.

Mr. Callahan first introduced the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Haverhill, who delivered a brief address, following which Mr. Osgood was introduced as the chairman.

Osgood's Speech.

Mr. Osgood said:

Wendell Phillips used to speak of the wonderful vitality in an idea. An idea once started on its course, if right, will travel to the ends of the earth. Its path is narrow at first, but like the wake of a steamboat it becomes wider and wider until it extends from shore to shore.

So the issue raised by the Independence party against the Standard Oil monopoly, the dictator of public business and the corruptor of public men, has grown in its proportions that it reaches both the Democratic and Republican strongholds.

The leaders of both these parties hasten to repudiate the Standard Oil and wash their hands of it. Thanks to the new party, this monopoly has no open political friends. The above leaders are tearing their hair and pointing to their respective opponents as the ones receiving the support of the arch enemy of American industries.

Why does the President of the United States now repudiate with such vehemence those "practical business men"? Because he is supposed to represent the entire people. It is growing clearer and clearer as time goes on that the task of retaining the confidence of the Harrimans and that of the people by speeches and platforms and pronouncements is becoming an impossible one. The managers of the Democratic party are equally anxious to shake off all possible connections with Rockefeller and his associates.

New Idea of Popular Rule.

Note the great progress made by the new idea of popular rule in fact, and not in name.

When before in a national campaign have we beheld such a clean cut and vital issue?

We have seen the comparatively intelligent issues advanced as national issues in many campaigns.

We have seen the elections of Presidents determined by careless and inconsiderate utterances of candidates, themselves of some infinitesimal friend.

Blaine tried in vain to neutralize the words of Burchard, Hancock deemed the tariff a local question, and was beaten. The opinions of two Presidents campaigns based upon these two mistakes.

Now come two parties trying to get rid of the same dangerous friend. The voters must this time conclude that the Standard Oil Company is the friend, in a Democrat or a Republican as conditions demand.

While the two old parties are riding to explain, the Independence party has come to completion of being friendly to the Standard.

Forced Oil Trust into Open.

Although perhaps not important enough to receive due attention from newspapers which do not publish news, yet the new party, more than all other causes, has forced the Standard Oil monopoly out into the open where it can be seen in all its hideous and repulsive aspect. So terrible had its past been made to appear that it has no ostensible political friends of prominence.

What political force in the community in the past has accomplished so much in so short a time?

The people of this country recognize the value of the Independence party, and are flocking to its standard, which is being carried high all the hamlets of the country on the third of November the patriotic and liberty-loving citizens of the United States will watch and study the returns, as well the enemies of genuine government. May the volume of votes cast for our cause be large and form the basis of future and pronounced victories. We want as large an endorsement as possible of the new issues which we have raised. We have commanded the attention of the political leaders of the old parties. We now seek the attention and support of the sovereign people themselves.

Sawyer Scores Lodge.

The Rev. Roland D. Sawyer devoted special attention to the Republican contest for Lieutenant-Governor. He charged the Lodge-Crane State machine had double-crossed the Cole campaign committee and the Lodge campaign committee and had brought forward another of their Beacon street kid-gloved favorites in the shape of Frothingham. Mr. Sawyer read from the Lodge-Crane sun a warning to the State machine of the effect on Lawrence voters if John X. Cole was betrayed, and asked: Will Lawrence Republicans stand by this double cross and betrayal of Cole's friends?

He read a statement of Lodge's that men of ability and high ideals must be put on guard, and asked if Lodge threw down Cole, who was sufficiently high minded, why did he not turn to Luce rather than Frothingham.

He closed by asking Rev. Herbert Johnson and the various Boston clergymen and temperance organizations who helped to nominate Lodge because of his attitude on liquor, to vote against him, as he, with the booze and boodle charges against Frothingham.

LODGE FLAYS JOHN D. FOR CAMPAIGN TRICK

"Rockefeller With Bryan," He Says at Rally---Dos Passos Quotes Independence Plank, Amid Cheers.

"The public declaration by John D. Rockefeller that he would support Judge Taft for the presidency was issued with the intent to injure the Republican party. The Standard Oil Company wants to be revenged on President Roosevelt, and every one connected with him. The Standard Oil is with Bryan, and the Rockefeller statement is but a little more trick to discredit the Republican candidates."

Such was the opinion of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant, in the above words, at a big Republican rally at Tremont Temple last night, uttered the audience into a wild uproar, which subsided only when Lodge held his hand in a motion for the crowd to stop.

And until Senator Lodge attack Rockefeller, but he scored other officials of the Oil Trust. Picking the broad and emphatic statement that the 60,000 employes of the company were all for Taft in their preference for Bryan for President Hon. John R. Dos Passos, a New York lawyer, the principal speaker of the occasion, who said he had been a Democrat went even further than Senator Lodge and declared that Republican party dis credited Rockefeller.

Cheer Independence Plank.

"The statement issued by the Standard Oil Company is absurdly the product of Rockefeller," said Dos Passos. "He is of the undesirable company. Rockefeller and his cohorts are in reality for Bryan, and the statement in question was put out as a trick to blind the voters into believing that the great Oil Trust magnates favored Judge Taft's candidacy. It is our duty to this He said crush it forever."

In a tribute to the National and State standard bearers, the rally was, in its opinion of many, a decided "frost." Taft, Sherman, Draper and Frothingham were cheered to the echo, but the opposition was not spontaneous.

Speaking of the denunciation of Rockefeller, the only noteworthy feature was the decisive manner in which the audience manifested its approval of the plank contained in the Independence Party platform, calling for the election of United States Senators by direct vote. The injunction of this issue in the speeches of the evening did not create enthusiasm to the senior United States senator, who buried his face in his hands as if in deep thought.

Mr. Dos Passos started off his address with the remarkable statement that the Legislatures should continue to elect members of the upper branch of Congress, but his remarks were cut short by spontaneous cheering when he quoted planks in the platform of the opposition party calling for a direct vote.

Dos Passos Worried.

The feeling of the audience caused Mr Dos Passos considerable worry for several minutes, but he recall that he took up of his line of argument and delivered an eloquent tribute to Senator Lodge. Then the Nahant man began to smile.

Asked to make a response to questions hurled at him by several men, Mr. Dos Passos then made one of the most caustic utterances of the evening. He admitted that senators had bought their seats with wealth.

"How about Senators Depew and Platt?" cried one man.

"I will not mention any names in responding," answered Mr. Dos Passos, "but I am reluctantly forced to admit that several United States Senator, have bought their seats with gold. It is indeed a shame and disgrace."

Senator Lodge, who was chairman, said in referring to the Rockefeller announcement:

"The statement put out by Rockefeller was not done in Taft's interest. It was a trick to help Bryan. The Standard Oil is not backing the Republican party; it has put its money in our enemy's pocket."

"Eleventh Hour Trick."

"The 60,000 men employed by the Standard Oil Company know who they are going to vote for; they are going to cast their ballots for Bryan. A search for pelt of these employees would show that they are almost to a man in the Democratic candidate.

"The reason the Rockefeller statement was put out is that the Standard Oil wishes to be rescued on Tuesday from the swift and everybody connected with him. It is a cheaply long story to injure the Republican candidates."

Louis A. Frothingham, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and Guy A. Hen discussed State issues.

HEIRS TO FORTUNE IN ORPHANS' HOME

Denver, Oct. 31.—John Coffey is suffering from the effects of delirium tremens at his side in this court and he knows it. Your Honor would be making a serious mistake to grant him the custody of these children."

With the above words Deputy District Attorney Crank scored John Coffey, who is fighting in the county court for the guardianship of six children, who have been in the Denver Orphans' Home since the death of his wife nearly three years ago.

The children were placed in the Denver Orphans' Home until they were three years, although by the will of their grandmother, who died in New York two years ago, they are to receive nearly $50,000, which will be held in trust for them.

After Mr. Crank's remarks, Judge Grant in Judge Stapleton's court refused to let Coffey have the children until the case for two weeks.

Vote for VAHEY and BARTON

Senator Vahey's record in the Senate of Massachusetts has been unequaled in the interests of the people. He was twice elected in an overwhelmingly Republican district because his neighbors and friends had confidence in him.

He led the fight which destroyed the Shoe Machinery monopoly.

He led the fight which put the Bucket-shop out of business.

He led the fight which prevented the railroad merger.

He voted and worked for the bill giving street railway employees nine hours in eleven.

He voted and worked for the Anti-injunction bill.

He voted and worked for the Employers' Liability bill.

He voted and worked for the 54-Hour bill for women and children.

His record on moral and labor questions is universally approved by press and public.

He is opposed to government by commission.

He fought the lobby and believes it ought to be abolished.

He is opposed to extravagance in state affairs.

He favors an investigation of the State Departments to find out why our expenses have increased so enormously.

He is opposed to the use of money and corruption in elections.

He is opposed to tax dodging.

He believes that Massachusetts industries should have greater rights than foreign corporations because they help to pay our bills.

He has challenged Mr. Draper to publicly debate these questions. Why has Mr. Draper refused?

Mr. Draper has not dared to meet Mr. Vahey and discuss the issues of this campaign.

Mr. Draper has evaded them and sought to hide himself behind the generous proportions of the Republican presidential candidate.

PRESIDENT ROUSED AT OIL KING'S MOVE

Issues Another Statement Denouncing Rockefeller Endorsement as Trick.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt is amazed at reports from some parts of the country that John D. Rockefeller's announcement that he will support Taft is taken seriously. The President himself takes the announcement as a joke and this afternoon authorized the following statement.

"The President has received numerous letters and telegrams about the Rockefeller trick of Rockefeller, dominos made agreement with the Democratic party, will fail absolutely. It is the second time in a few years that Mr. Taft has said that if Mr. Rockefeller had really wanted him elected he would have kept quiet about it, and that he has come out for him in this way is what he can damage him most."

In the following statement as made public for the White House:

"The President has received numerous letters and telegrams about the Rockefeller trick of Rockefeller, dominos made agreement with the Democratic party, will fail absolutely. It is the second time in a few years that Mr. Taft has said that if Mr. Rockefeller had really wanted him elected he would have kept quiet about it, and that he has come out for him in this way is what he can damage him most."

[illegible] STAFFORD, [illegible] President Widows' Union, Workers' Association.

Immediately following the making public of the statement, a number of Democrats in Washington, including the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, called on the President and remained with him for an hour, discussing the executive action of Mr. Rockefeller.

The President is said to say that in view of the remarkable statement issued by Mr. Rockefeller, he will not make any further statement on the subject.

Democratic leaders say that this is the end of the Rockefeller incident, so far as the President is concerned.

Unofficially, it was added at the White House today, that when the facts became known it would be found that the action of the Standard Oil corporation had supplied the bulk of the Hearst campaign fund by means of various hidden subscriptions, if not openly.

MEXICAN BEAUTY IN $50,000 LOVE SUIT

SUED FOR HER LOST LOVE

Now Declares He Was Married to Southern Stage Beauty When He Wedded Her.

A romance of three Continents was revealed through a patriotic denouement in Malden last night when Frank F. Barentzen, a photographer, was sued by Robert C. Guptill, a wealthy Malden contractor, for $50,000 for alienation of affections. came face to face with his pretty twelve-year-old daughter, Edith, in front of a Linden avenue restaurant, where the wife, clinging to her child—her last possession—had been dining.

The father stepped up to the restaurant in the dark just as the child, laughing over a huge Jack-o'-lantern, came romping forth.

The man grasped the happy little girl in fond embrace. Her laughter vanished. In alarm she screamed.

Wrestling herself free from the father she ran livid ewhere per mother ran. The mother always had tried to shield the little girl as if to protect her from an enemy. "I was afraid of," she cried. "I have been in constant terror for fear I would lose little Edith. Now two have been taken away and she is all I have left."

Reveals Remarkable Story.

And then to a Boston American reporter Mrs. Barentzen revealed a remarkable story of a broken home. The mother has replied to the alienation suit by bringing an action for an annulment of her marriage to Barentzen on the ground that he had another wife living when they were wed seventeen years ago. She defended, in the alienation suit, Guptill—has answered Barentzen's complaint by declaring the man had deserted the woman who bears his name and that they were never legally married because of the prior wife's existence.

And "the woman in the case"—she is a woman of mystery, a Mexican actress of rare beauty, of whispered fame in South American, whom Barentzen met her in British Guiana and wed her, whom she is to-day, if she is alive, the lawyers refuse to say. But they say she is alive, and Mrs. Barentzen corroborates their declaration, for, since the witness left, she has not be alive three years after Barentzen married the second wife, when he was, she was in Bellevue Hospital, New York, crazed by her failure to find the husband she loved.

Here is Mrs. Barentzen's story: "I had hoped to escape this publicity, but it is forced upon me by the action of the courts, and I am telling to the Boston American first my refusal to the charge that my suing has made on account of Mr. Guptill. I am not influenced by him in any whatever. It is only the act of a man crazed with love and jealousy that would seek annul Barentzen for an annulment of our marriage. I shall never live with him again.

Wedded Beautiful Actress.

"I know when I married him that he had been married before. He told me his wife was dead and I believed him. I met him in December, 1906, when he was conducting a photographic studio in Charlestown. I secured a position with him as a stenographer. We fell in love and were married November 11, 1907, by the Rev. Father Prescott at the Episcopal Church of the Advent in Belmont street, in the presence of my relatives and friends.

"Little had told me before that, that when he was traveling in British Guiana in 1878 he met and loved Adela Perino Diaz, a most beautiful Mexican actress, who was the rage of South America at that time. She was a rare beauty of French-Spanish descent, who had captivated South America, Europe and even North American audiences. He told me that she deserted him in 1887 while they were playing in Martinique, and that she had since died.

"We came to live in Malden. In 1905, while on were traveling in the West Indies, somebody sent me a clipping from a New York paper relating how Miss Diaz, as she was known to the stage, had been found raving about my husband in front of a New York theatre and had been taken to the observation ward in Bellevue.

Had Faith in Husband.

"I placed no faith in this story, so well did I trust my husband. Our affairs went on smoothly until finally Mr. Barentzen engaged in business with Mr. Guptill. Mr. Guptill came frequently to our house on business errands. He and I were good friends—nothing more. My husband became crazed with jealousy and sued Mr. Guptill, and then we separated. I was at West Roxbury, Dec. 2, when the suit was brought and immediately hurried to Boston. While I was gone my husband took the boys, Walter, aged six-teen, and Laurice, aged thirteen. When he had told me he would stick to me if I was innocent and like a good wife of No. 74 Lindo avenue, Malden, and there I am supporting her by working again at Barentzen refused to see me. Guptill refused to see me. Finally I appealed to my attorneys, who declared to an AMERICAN reporter, however, that there was no chance of a reconciliation.

Mrs. Grace L. Barentzen, Whose Husband Sued Friend for Alienating Her Love

GIBLIN, IN RAGE, QUITS BOARD FIGHT

East Boston Candidate Denounces Fitzgerald; Says He Was "Given Double Cross."

Thomas J. Giblin of East Boston strode into the headquarters of the Democratic city committee in the Old South building last evening and withdrew as a candidate for the aldermanic nomination in Wards 1 and 2.

Then ex-Senator JaJmes Mellen of Charlestown, Councilman Joseph Sumner, mayor of Ward 6, Henry S. Fitzgerald, brother of the ex-mayor; Thomas Keliher, brother of the congressman, and Miss Mary Myers, executive clerk of the Democratic city committee, heard Giblin in a bitter denunciation of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald.

"I was given this nomination on a platter in return for supporting Joe Casey for Congress," he said. "Your brother, turning to Henry Fitzgerald] is now giving me the double-cross. He's the one that put Pat Dolan into this fight against me. I know all about it. But you don't fool me. No cheap talk to me again to Henry Fitzgerald, I'd knock your head off for two cents."

Henry Fitzgerald heaved himself against the wall and said nothing.

"One minute left for withdrawals," said Miss Myers, trying hard to look cheerful.

"Three minutes," thundered Giblin.

Patrick J. Dolan, whose followers were put in the fight against him by the Fitzgerald machine, is employed in the street-laying-out department of the city

VOTERS IN REVOLT AGAINST FISKE

Ross-Ruled Old Party Leaders In Barefaced Double Deal to Fool People.

There is a political upheaval in the Fifth Senatorial District, comprising Wards 10, 11 and 25 of Boston. There is a result of the deceit tactics of all parties against the lumbered ballot that is being carried on by the Republican and Democratic bosses, who are attempting to reelect Senator Charles B. H. Fiske against the wishes of the people of this district, against the wishes of organized labor, and in addition to the voters of the public service corporations.

Many Republicans and a great many Democrats are doing whatever they can for the only candidate running against Senator Fiske. His opponent is Winthrop C. Johnson of Ward 10, Lowell, of the Independence League party.

The Democratic party has made a mockery of votes of the rank and file by using them as tools of the big corporations, is manipulated the primaries that were held to name a corporate candidate for the Senate in the Fifth district.

Obey Corporation Call.

At the State convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in Lowell a short time ago, Senator Fiske was practically denounced as the foe of organized labor, and all friends of working men were called upon to defeat him.

So pleased was a prominent has senator Fiske become in his fight against labor that he has come out openly and is working with the committees in his district, and, it is said, has left the matter entirely in the hands of the committees, looking after his interests in the campaign.

Johnson Friend of Labor.

Mr. Johnson has many friends among members of labor unions, and in the ranks of the non-partisan voters, among the business men with whom he has come in contact during his many years of general traveling.

The feeling among the Democratic voters is that they have been sold out by the bosses, and that they will not stand for it. The deal in Fiske's behalf is so palpable that the better element of the Republicans are repudiating his political candidacy.

Senator Fiske was wont to say when asked why he voted contrary to the public interest:

"None of your ——."

Senator Gideon Abbott, [illegible] said why he didn't vote for measures [illegible] organized labor and that the good [illegible] wanted enacted, would invariably [illegible]

"Because I didn't have to."

Christian and Skauen.

One of the most respected members of Roslindale is the Independence League candidate for Senator in the South District, Alonzo B. Cheney, 20 Slayter street. He is making an especially active and his friends believe he is going to be elected.

Kristian N. Skauen of North Bennett street, Independence League candidate for the Senate in the Fifth district, when Wards 1 and 2 and 5 of Boston and Ward 4 of Cambridge has been entirely [illegible] is making a splendid campaign and has the support of the Independence League and his candidacy is gaining strength.

Mr. Skauen is a man of wide experience and has himself been a politician. He has been a resident of Ward 6 for a number of years, for a long time has been a possessor of a membership card of the Harvard Club, and still retains it although now a building contractor.

MRS. HAINS, ROUSED, DEFIES HUSBAND

In Statement to American Declares Taunts May Goad Her to Testify Against Him.

Mrs. Claudia C. Hains in a signed statement to the Boston Sunday American last night, declared that her husband, Captain Peter C. Hains, and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, had resorted to every means in their power to blacken my character in the attempt to save their own lives. She supplemented this retort to the letters and other publications made on behalf of the Hainses, reflecting upon her, by declaring in effect that the [illegible] publications caused, she would be impelled to become a witness at the Hains murder trial, with the confident opinion that the jury would find the slaying of William A. Annis, and his brother, to be justifiable.

Mrs. Hains made the statement, which is remarkable terse and vigorous, as a direct response to the publication of letters alleged to have been written by her to Annis [illegible] early this year, in which unseemly [illegible] were set forth, and the issuance on behalf of the Hainses, of a statement attributed to Mrs. Hains, under the name of Miss Lucy Sawyer, a former maid in the Hains home, was [illegible] as telling of visits of William A. Annis to the Hains at belmont while the captain was away, and of her [illegible] would avoid [illegible] by the healthy young wife of the army captain who [illegible] Annis.

"The reason for the issuance of these statements attacking my character," she [illegible] "is obvious. They are [illegible] to save the only means by which the two [illegible] can escape the penalty for the murder of the public and to manufacture public sympathy for themselves. The only way it is to be drawn to try them for murder.

"Many of my relatives and friends are urging me to become a witness for the impending murder trial regardless of the outcry the feeling of the foul fiend would cause my husband and his brother, she [illegible] [illegible] so as to still be [illegible] upon my ability to stand [illegible] ordeal of silence.

Here is Mrs. Hains's statement in full:

Seeking Public Sympathy.

"Ever since the shooting of William E. Annis by Captain Hains the newspapers have been full of irresponsible statements based on behalf of Captain Hains and his brother attacking my character. The reason for the issue of these statements has previously been that they were the only means by which the two brothers could [illegible] public sympathy for the [illegible] and manufacture public sympathy in the community from which the jury from whom they are to be tried is now drawn.

"In all the statements I have signed under great [illegible] to maintain a silence which I knew was [illegible] in doing so except as far as my friends have [illegible] to make [illegible] some particularly malicious and scandalous attack.

"I have also been advised by my lawyers that as a matter of law it is illegal in the divorce proceedings forbids rushing into print during the course [illegible] the newspapers and that while the publication of false statements against me undoubtedly did me and my children great injury [illegible] proper course was to remain silent until the facts should be brought out in court.

Young Mother Kisses Babies and Mysteriously Vanishes

Mrs. Marie Louise Dumont, who strangely disappeared from home nearly a month ago, and her little daughter, Denise, who cries constantly for "Mamma."

Not a Clew to Mrs. Dumont's Movements Since She Left Her Happy Worcester Home Oct. 6.

Worcester, Oct. 31.—After vanishing as suddenly and completely as though she had been swept away by a cyclone, Mrs. Marie Louise Dumont, aged twenty-one, wife of Louis Dumont of No. 2 Armsmoor, has been missing from her home since the morning of October 6.

Her disappearance is a mystery which has baffled the New York, Boston, Providence and Worcester police. Not a trace of the woman has been found since she left her home alone to walk in the forenoon, after kissing her two children goodby. She strolled through the yard, her hand to them as they stood in the window.

At the home of Mrs. Dumont's mother, Mrs. John H. Pigott, at Webster, today, two babies are crying for the missing woman. Denise, aged two, is near death from a disease which attacked her a few days before. Her mother's grandniece, aged four, constantly pleads for her mother. "Papa, why don't mamma come to see me? Papa, when she going to bring mamma home, she love them, she asks every time Mr. Dumont sees her.

The heartbroken father has no answer for the little girl. He knows not whether the solving of the mystery will reveal a tragedy, an elopement or a mother discouraged by family cares, fleeing from the world for rest.

Father Is Heartbroken.

Mr. Dumont is heartbroken. "My child is not so much for myself as the babies," he told a reporter for the Boston Sunday American. "She is dear and well and happier away from me. I can bear the thought of anything but if wrings my heart to have the plaintive of our little ones and to know I cannot explain her disappearance any more than the babies can. There was never a word between us that would lead to her voluntarily leaving home. She who a good girl and kindly a loving wife and mother. Tenderhearted and affectionate she thought more of her children than of anything in the world. I cannot believe she would willingly abandon them.

"Mrs. Dumont left the house about 10 o'clock on the forenoon of October 6. I remember, I think, I go out myself. She left the house alone, and I am sure she did not meet any one. She left the house at 10 o'clock on the day she left. This was positive, but I am not sure of the hour. I was at home and fond of life to such a degree that I feel sure of this statement.

"In the morning, just as he left for the office, Mr. Dumont kissed the children. Mrs. Dumont came home again with them and she entered the house. It is certain that she left the house alone. She was not followed and no one entered the house after her. She left the house alone. I believe and firmly believe that she is alive and well. I believe that she will return home on the day that she left. I cannot believe that she has met with foul play. I believe that she will return home on the day that she left. I cannot believe that she has met with foul play. I believe that she will return home on the day that she left. I cannot believe that she has met with foul play.

Home Just as She Left It.

Inside the house on the night just as Mrs. Dumont left it the morning she vanished. The sheet of music she last used is still on the piano. The chair in the bedroom stands the hidden path and nearby is a little pile of toys. A the same story of a life as it was

Mr. Dumont himself in terms of the lovable and happy married life. "I knew Marie for many years before we were married. She was a girl of the same street in Webster, and I was then considerably more than twice her age. Her home was the same as mine. Her parents were the same as mine. Her father was my father's friend. Her mother was the same as my mother's friend. Her sister was the same as my sister's friend. Her brother was the same as my brother's friend. Her home was the same as my home. Her parents were the same as my parents. Her sister was the same as my sister. Her brother was the same as my brother

GIRL WHO JOURNEYED ACROSS SEA TO MARRY SWEETHEART IN BOSTON

ENGLISH LASS WEDS AS IVERNIA DOCKS

Agnes Thornley Leaves Family to Become Bride in America of Young Mechanic.

The happiest couple in Lynn, according to their own statement, are Samuel McAuley of No. 59 Camden street and his pretty English bride of two days, who was married on her arrival in Boston Thursday on the Ivernia from Liverpool. They were wed on shipboard by the waterfront parsons, Fr. Jerome O. Buras, so eager was the delighted groom to claim his sweetheart of former days.

The bride was Agnes Thornley of Barrow in Furness, England, where the two first met when singing in a church choir some years ago. It was love at first sight, they declare, and since that day both have counted the long years which separated them after the pluky youth started for new land to earn money to start a home.

Parted 15 Months Ago.

They parted a little over fifteen months ago, and McAuley promised that the pretty English lass would follow soon.

"It's like living once more to have you sweetheart with you," said the happy groom to a Boston American reporter. "Married life is the sort for a fellow whose work is settled, and we are going to prove that two can live cheaper than one."

On the Ivernia the bride to be was the center of attraction, and the steamer hadn't been out of Liverpool long before everyone aboard knew that the cheerful Lass had given up all her dear ones and friends.

Sailing with Miss Thornley from England was Miss Mary Hilton, of Hyde ton, England, who had promised to serve as bridesmaid. She joined friends into in New Bedford.

Passengers See Wedding.

Mr. McAuley is a valued member of the big General Electric works at Lynn. He is an authority on association football and since his coming to America has acted as referee in games between crack teams in this state. Yesterday he served in that capacity at Quincy.

His bride is a separately pretty girl with light brown hair and blue eyes and rosy cheeks. She likes America already although she finds it hard to leave her parents and five sisters and a brother at home.

Their wedding ceremony aboard the big ship Ivern a was witnessed by all the various passengers and congratulations were showered on the young couple

SISTERS ASK POLICE TO FIND BROTHER

Unable to account for their brother's strange disappearance, the Misses Helen and Mary Kelly of No. 829 Saratoga street East Boston, yesterday asked the police to help them in their search for their brother James, aged thirty, who has been missing since last Tuesday. Kelly is about five feet eight inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, is smooth shaven and has a light complexion. He wore working clothes when last seen.

PROOFREADERS IN HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Members of the Boston Proofreaders' Association last night held a Hallowe'en party at the Copley Square Hotel. Speeches were made by Miss Mabel L. Stone, the president; Thomas Todd, Miss Josephine Bates, Miss Mary Frisbie, John J. Flinn and Alexander Dodds. Entertainments were contributed to by Miss Anabelle Johnson and Francis Johnson.

HOW TO AVOID BALDNESS

Caused by Dandruff and Only One Way to Prevent It.

Since Dr. Lassar, the famous German savant, made the announcement, a short time ago, that falling hair and consequent baldness are invariably caused by dandruff, the demand for Birt's head wash, a recent medical discovery, has been nothing short of phenomenal. All kinds of hair tonics and invigorators used heretofore have failed to stop falling hair and promote a new growth simply because they do not cure dandruff, the actual cause. As dandruff is a scalp trouble that forms scales and flakes before stood, it has proved most difficult to get rid of, until the discovery of Birt's head wash. It works wonders in one or two applications and stops falling hair immediately.

In order to meet the extraordinary demand which has been created since its wonderful merits have become so widely known, Birt's head wash has been placed on sale in Boston at Houghton & Dutton Co's, R. H. White Co's, the Riker-Jaynes Stores and other leading drug stores, where a full supply may be had for 50c.

HISGENSEES BIG VOTE FOR NEW PARTY ON TUESDAY.

Nominee Says the Issue Is: "Are You For or Against the Trusts?"

APPEALS TO CONSCIENCE

Says if All Who Have Been Oppressed Would Vote for New Party, It Would Win.

New York, Oct. 31. At the close of one of the largest and most remarkable campaigns ever made by a party of this country, the Prohibition party, with Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts as its standard bearer, is the United States which is for the first time in its history, has a full ticket in the field. Mr. Hisgen's position is unique in that he is the only candidate who has been nominated by a party and who has not yet received a single vote. He is not even sure that he will receive his own vote, as he has not yet decided whether he will vote for himself or for Chauncey M. Depew, the Republican candidate for Vice President, whom he has known for many years.

Mr. Hisgen's campaign is based on the proposition that the Republican party has failed to keep its promises to the people, and that the Democratic party is not to be trusted. He says that the Republican party has failed to keep its promises to the people, and that the Democratic party is not to be trusted. He says that the Republican party has failed to keep its promises to the people, and that the Democratic party is not to be trusted.

100 HARVARD BOYS TO PROBE RECORDS

Will Investigate Candidates for Office for Good Government Association.

During the coming week the Good Government Association will send over 100 Harvard students to delve in the private and public records of the various candidates for office at the coming election, for the purpose of determining which will be given the endorsement of the organization in the coming campaign.

Major Hubbard has requested the association to inform him, if possible, who are going to endorse for the Board of Aldermen, as he desires to get a full association in advance of the election. Whether or not the association has decided to unleash on the candidates the 100 students who have been secured to take part in the investigation is not known. It is understood, however, that the information to the Mayor.

The visit of Secretary Billings of the association to the Mayor's office the past week, effectually put an end to the rumor that Mayor Hibbard and the Associated Charities objects on all candidates.

Many of the aldermanic candidates are said to be apprehensive of the Yeomen and some of them have asked for it. It is understood, however, that the association is working in close relations with the Associated Charities Bureau, as refusing to support the nominations of Aldermen Curley, Donnelly, Fitzgerald and Baldwin and frowning upon the candidacy of Thomas J. Gibbs of East Boston.

CROWLEY MAKING SENSATIONAL RUN AROUND LEFT END IN THE STADIUM GAME

DARTMOUTH IS VICTOR OVER AMHERST, 17 TO 0.

Green Scores Two Touchdowns Within Seven Minutes, Then Slows Down.

FUMBLING CONTEST

Forward Pass Is Used Successfully; Good Playing by Marks.

Hanover, N. H., Oct 31.—Before a crowd of 3,000 shivering spectators Dartmouth beat Amherst by a score of 17 to 0. The game was extremely slow and in the second half degenerated into a fumbling match in which Ingersoll for Dartmouth and Abele of Amherst both featured. Amherst made desperate efforts to score throughout the game, but although her backs could make steady gains down the field, when they got within striking distance of the green goal line Dartmouth held like a rock.

Dartmouth started the game with a rush, securing two touchdowns within the first seven minutes. But with eleven points against them, Amherst developed a fighting streak which Dartmouth added by continual fumbling and off-side play, the result being that for the remainder of the first half the visitors were fighting desperately to prevent a score.

In the second half it was not until the last few minutes that Dartmouth could score, but both grams by Hawley and good old fashioned line plunging by Marks finally turned the trick.

Brusse started the game by kicking to Gray, who was downed on his fifteen yard line. Amherst could not gain and kicked to Ingersoll on the forty yard line. Dartmouth could not gain, however, and Ingersoll kicked. Hodgkins failed to gain and kicked to Hawley, who ran the ball back to Amherst's forty yard line. Marks failed to gain, and Hawley only got center on the next two plays, but a forward pass to Daly proved more successful, for he planted the ball behind the posts for Dartmouth's first score. Kilbourne kicked off to Marks, who came back twenty five yards on the next two plays. Ingersoll and Ingersoll kicked to Abele, who fumbled, Rich recovering the ball for Dartmouth. Marks got seven; Sherwin got two and a forward pass to Schlereth for made twenty five yards, and planted the ball on the two-yard line. Marks was set over the line by Coach Cooper, after the game, expressed himself as disappointed in the team work, especially because of the repeated fumbling. The line-up:

TIGERS OUTPLAYED BY ARMY TEAM

Neither Side Scores in Hard-Fought Battle at West Point.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Repulsing the rushes of the Princeton Tiger four times within four minutes, when one touchdown more would have meant victory for the Jerseymen, West Point this afternoon held Princeton to a 0 to 0 tie.

The game was not as exciting as ever a football team was forced to exhibit to stave off defeat, and with a grit and gameness that aroused the thousands of spectators to a frenzy of enthusiasm the student body is not the problem and solved it.

For an hour was put to the test in the second half, when the Tigers, with the aid of the wind that swept down from the north and a fumble on the part of the Cadets, got the ball within 30 yards of the Cadets' goal.

Once the Army held for downs, only to have the terrific attack take on immediate life through the failure of Green, the Army punter, to get his kicks away in the teeth of the wind. Time and again he was chased perpendicularly and another rushed away only to be thrown back by the terrific force of his kicks went seventy-five yards, coming to the mull.

In the second half, with the advantage of the wind, Princeton failed to take advantage of it as successfully as the Army did in the first period.

Instead of kicking continually and risking one of the numerous fumbles giving the ball within striking distance, Dillon first and then Bergen, who succeeded him at quarter, continually tried to work the army line or turn her flanks. The attempt however, even although long results from these tactics.

Big McClellan, the Tiger fullback, was the star of his team, with Tibbott running a close second. Captain Green seemed the only man who could split the army line for, while Hagen was conspicuously lame any of his mates in end running, returning punts and non field work.

Gerbin was the lieutenant general of the army team. His punting was unsightly, but his end running the most spectacular feature of the game and his ability to get by the Tiger tacklers unerring and fatal.

Today's score was the third 0 to 0 that Princeton has played this season, the others being with Lafayette and Pennsylvania. She has shut out both the Army and Syracuse and the Princeton colors left the field in a deeply contemplative mood. Summary:

MALDEN TRIUMPHS OVER EVERETT HIGH

Winners Have to Fight Hard for Victory to Get Game by Score 11 to 4.

Before a crowd of 5,000 Malden High defeated Everett High on the Malden High School gridiron yesterday afternoon 11 to 4 in a hotly contested game for the championship of the Suburban League.

Everett's team was seriously handicapped early in the game by an injury to Captain Lawring, who had to be carried from the field.

Malden scored both goals in the first half of the game, Morey securing a touchdown on a blocked punt, while Clark, on a twenty-five yard forward pass from Tobey, crossed the line. The goal was kicked by Captain Morgan.

Everett worked the ball to within five yards of Malden's goal on two occasions but the latter held on downs.

Hockey, on a drop kick from the twenty-yard line, scored four points for Everett. The summary:

WORCESTER TECH LOST ROUGH GAME

Worcester, Oct. 31.—The Worcester Tech eleven were beaten 5 to 2 this afternoon on the oval by the Rensselaer Tech team, in a roughly played game. Rensselaer's touchdown was made in the first half on a short run by Shankey around right end.

Worcester played aggressively during the second half, keeping Rensselaer on the defensive most of the time. Rensselaer braced at critical times however, taking the ball on downs on their own and line shortly before time was called. Power and Captain Crowther played well for Worcester, while Hagen, Shankey and Huth starred for Rensselaer. Summary:

CORNELL BEATS PENN STATE

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Cornell defeated Pennsylvania State here this afternoon in a rough game by a score of 10 to 4. In the first half Cornell scored a touchdown, while Penn State kicked a goal from the field. In the second session, however, the home eleven's line was impregnable against the visitors' attack. A lone touchdown by Cornell constituted the only scoring in this half.

MIDDIES ARE GIVEN SETBACK BY INDIAN ELEVEN.

BALENTI MAKES 4 GOALS

Remarkable Exhibition of Kicking by the Little Carlisle Quarterback.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 31.—The Navy football team lost to the Carlisle Indians today by 16 to 6, the Redmen's scores being made partly by goals from placement and partly by goals from plays made by Balenti, the visitor's quarterback. The feat of the little Indian was a remarkable one, for by the fact that he kicked four goals from placement out of five chances offered him and put the ball squarely above the bar and between the goal posts.

Two of the chances were hard ones, the angles being oblique ones. The one scoring feature of the game to the Middies was that Farrell did not miss a single goal that he tried for.

However, this is only a moderate consolation, for losing the game, the first defeat of the season and the first at which the Naval Academy has ever sustained from Carlisle.

During the whole game a stiff breeze blew straight down the field and was a tremendous advantage to the side which it favored. The Indians were helped by it for the first half. It was when the half ended with two goals to the credit of the Carlisle boys that the Navy would be helped by the wind in the second half and make a touchdown. In fact, the Navy's chief chance to score came at the beginning of the second half, that being the only time the wind was with them.

The first touchdown occurred, however, early in the first quarter of the second half. The Navy had the ball on its own 20-yard line, and after advancing it by a couple of rushes Balenti had the chance for Halsted to kick the ball down the field. Halsted, however, failed to get under the ball and it went only a few yards, where Balenti picked it up and ran around the right end for Old Rivals Have Hard Struggle on Grid ron in Annual Contest for Supremacy.

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 31.—The University of Maine defeated Bates' football team at Garcelon field this afternoon by a score of 6 to 0. The game was characterized by clean but fierce struggling for supremacy.

In the first half the ball was at no time decided, being on both territories. When the ball was on Bates's territory the Maine backs blew, and the half ended without either side scoring. In the second half the Maine boys showed up better and pushed gains on line plunges and around ends while Bates's playing was spotty, working gains through the centre. Kennedy was star for Bates's playing and kicking the most of the time, his punts averaging fifty-five yards. Parks, Maine's fullback, was the ground gaining star for the visitors, excelling.

SMITH'S LONG RUN GIVES BOWDOIN VICTORY.

Bowdoin scored against them until the last quarter of the game, Bowdoin yesterday defeated a team at the Tufts oval in Somerville this afternoon.

But for the sensational run of Smith in the first half for Bowdoin, when he covered sixty yards after two placement kicks had failed, the score would probably have been in Tufts favor. As it was, Bowdoin made two touchdowns, kicked one goal, while Tufts, making an equal number of touchdowns, failed to kick the ball between the goal posts, the score standing in Bowdoin's favor, 11 to 10.

Smith of Bowdoin played one of the fastest games ever witnessed at the Tufts oval. Breaking through the line for sensational runs, he twice added the ball for touchdowns, besides kicking a goal.

Tufts had the better of the argument in weight but failed to hold the speedy backs of the opponents. Dittrick, playing quarter for Tufts's team, made a run of 40 yards at the opening of the second half and added 5 yards, Bisbee 5 yards and Dodge 8 yards for twenty-five yards, but failed to add valuable ground as attempts to kick goal.

There was a rough one after the end of the first half and disputes threatened all the game, but it was one of the cleanest which ever Tufts one point, as the score, for many of the plays which were off side and the kick which went from over again to Tufts' goal line.

PIERCE ARROWS POPULAR ABROAD

Decks on Steamer Are to Be Changed to Accommodate American Motor Vehicles.

Word has been received by George N. Pierce Company of Buffalo from its selling and construction departments of a large transatlantic line that so important a part of its business has the shipment of automobiles from America to Europe that Texas Leaguers that of any of the construction of its Medit[illegible] steamers are to be made.

The company gave as its reason for sending this information the fact that between one-fourth and one-third of the machines shipped from this country to Europe for touring purposes are Pierce Arrows. When Americans first began taking their cars abroad for touring purposes, the latter said, they were content to land at Southampton, Cherbourg or Bremen. Now, however, many prefer to land in Italy and then tour northward, embarking for the homeward voyage from [illegible] ports. The latest [illegible] of this company [illegible] Pierce Arrows [illegible] Belgian [illegible] used for the large [illegible] touring cars and closed cars [illegible] passengers of their line the difference [illegible] them in good [illegible] tional [illegible] cost [illegible] cars [illegible] letter reads, was not necessarily as the space between decks on almost all of them was sufficient.

Stops Failing Vigor of Men

Undoubtedly the following prescription will help weaken that great class of men who by overtaxing their nature, are unable to find themselves in their second childhood long before the three score and ten limit to life's pleasures and enjoyments are reached.

Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on the diseases of men it is presumed to be infallible, and the profession generally indorse it as highly efficient in quickly restoring a nervous exhaustion, weakness, debility, impotency and the functional disorders of the kidneys. It is published now with the full authority of the originator for the benefit of the shipwrecked lives that find life not worth the living and who have been unsuccessfully treated.

First get fifty cents' worth compound fluid balmwort in a one ounce package, and three ounces syrup sarsaparilla compound, take home, mix and let stand 1½ hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardol and one ounce tincture cadomene compound. Mix in a pint or eight ounce bottle, shake well and take one teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring, followed by a drink of water.

It is said by those who have been treated by this eminent pathologist that astounding nerve power and vigor is well worth the large fees which he charges.

By mixing it at home no man need be the wiser as to another's shortcomings, and exorbitant fees are avoided.

Most druggists keep these ingredients on hand. If they cannot be ready to put up the prescription from a number of leaders in Ohio, who prepare it, they will create some private pills for prescription filling, will doubtless supply them.

This Is a Candidate | Does He Suit YOU?

WILLIAM R. HEARST and his newspapers supported Mr. Bryan in two campaigns. He supported Mr. Bryan financially, giving him outright many thousands of dollars and raising many other thousands. Mr. Bryan was then believed to be sincere by the newspaper. Mr. Hearst at the beginning of this campaign announced that he could not support Mr. Bryan because he could not support "a chameleon candidate." He described Mr. Bryan's changing policies and changing colors. On this page is a printed reflection of the truthful picture drawn by W. R. Hearst

This picture is a picture of a campaign. Certain men like steadfastness, sincerity, courage that sticks under adversity. We do not believe that they can vote for Mr. Bryan

We believe sincerely that Mr Bryan changes his opinions, the color of his thought, to attain his object, as the chameleon changes his own color for the sake of individual safety

Mr. Bryan on the silver sands of '96 was a silver-colored chameleon. To-day he sees the golden opportunity with the golden support of the Standard Oil, and he is a chameleon OF THE COLOR OF GOLD.

Our readers have read the list of contributions made to Mr. Bryan's campaign fund. He got five thousand dollars from the lawyer of the public service corporations in Colorado. In the days when Bryan was believed by us and by the public generally to be sincere HE WOULD NOT HAVE GOT A CENT FROM THAT LAWYER.

Mr. Bryan got a contribution of $2,500 from the Tammany Club in New York. That club is the property of Ryan, the Street Car Trust owner: it does what he says. It gave Bryan no money in the days when Bryan was believed to be a nicere.

Roger Sullivan, of Chicago, agent of the Gas Trust there, contributes a thousand dollars to Bryan openly, and earnest personal efforts privately. He gives that to the Bryan of golden color.

Tom Taggart, the gambler, of Indiana, gives a thousand dollars to Bryan. Well he may. Kern, the gamblers' lawyer, was made Bryan's running mate.

We are not attacking Mr. Bryan personally when we say earnestly and sincerely that he is a man without fixed convictions, except the conviction that Bryan should be President of the United States.

He has not proved ability in any line except in the use of words, and he is not consistent in their use.

He changes issues with chameleon-like ease and rapidity. And he forgets to-day the color that he wore yesterday. NO COLOR IS HIS OWN; ALL ARE BORROWED. He borrowed Free Silver and then dropped the color.

He spoke of Public Ownership of Railroads as "crazy socialism"—those were his exact words—and in a few months he was advocating Public Ownership. And a few days later he was again denouncing it and calling it unnecessary

To-day, when the public is discussing the gravest questions of government, when their public affairs require balance steadiness and consistency, Mr. Bryan has nothing better to offer than his so-called "Bank Guaranty." He has a plan to compel honest bankers to make good the stealings of the dishonest. Truly a childish, frivolous and fundamentally dishonest remedy for existing evils.

You mean to vote for Bryan: WHICH BRYAN ARE YOU GOING TO VOTE FOR? You can't deny that the Bryan of to-day is not the Bryan of 1904, or the Bryan of 1900, or the Bryan of 1896.

You must admit that as he has crawled through the years his color has changed like the color of the chameleon crawling from yellow sand to green grass. Perhaps you approve his color at this moment. But how do you know he will keep that color? What reason have you to believe that the Bryan of the hour, for whom you cast your vote, will be the Bryan of next year or the year after?

You want to vote against existing evils. Well, vote for a man that has persistently fought existing evils. AND FOUGHT THEM CONSISTENTLY.

Mr. Hisgen, the nominee of the Independence Party, has made a fight and kept at it for years It has been always the same fight, THE FIGHT AGAINST TRUST MONOPOLY AND INTIMIDATION.

When you vote for Hisgen and the other candidates of the Independence Party you vote for men that stick to their object until they accomplish it. Mr. Bryan is presented to you by some of his friends, doubtless sincerely, as representing reform. BUT WHICH REFORM?

He is like a compass that points now North, now South, now East and now West. You can't afford to set sail with such an instrument in charge of your ship.

We don't believe that any American voter will deliberately declare his intention of supporting a man, changeable, uncertain, vacillating, chameleon-like.

We don't think that any thoughtful man can deny that Mr. Bryan has proved himself what W. R Hearst described him to be. "a came eon candidate."

Opposed to Mr. Bryan you have offered you in the candidacy of Hisgen consistency, executive capacity, a man that has persistently and successfully FOUGHT the Standard Oil by whom others have been BOUGHT

We say this to a reader, and it can't bb denied. If you knew Mr. Bryan and if you knew Mr. Hisgen, and if you had to leave the country and leave the earth and leave the welfare of your children and your wife and of business generally in the hands of one of those men, YOU WOULD SELECT HISGEN. You would not give your private interests, your personal welfare and your family's welfare into the hands of Bryan if you knew him. And you would without hesitation confide your own interests and the interests of your family to Hisgen if you knew him

YOUR INTERESTS ARE THE NATION'S INTERESTS You cannot do justice to your country and vote for the man without fixity of purpose and convictions based on knowledge or established proof of ability

It is the sincere belief of this newspaper that the election of Mr. Bryan would mean

Lack of employment for those that now have it.

Continued idleness for those that are now idle;

Decrease in prosperity.

Disorder in all business.

And, what is more serious than all, a reaction toward trusts and monopolies, based upon disgust for the inefficiency of Mr. Bryan's miscalled reform.

The Book of Bores ~ THE INVALID ~ By Dorothy Dix

"Frequently one runs up against a robust and rotund individual, dressed in the gladdest of glad rags, only to discover a moment later that he is a dyspeptic with a stomach of which he is never weary of discoursing."

"It is the habit of this terrible creature to seize upon perfect strangers and casual acquaintances that she meets with on a railroad train, or in a hotel, and bore them to death by relating every gory detail of how the surgeons cut her up into mincemeat."

OLD-FASHIONED people used to speak of sickness as a means of discipline, and when any one was ill used the powers of the inner region for our spiritual welfare or sister, as the case might be.

The idea was all right, but the application was wrong. Sickness is a discipline, but it renders meek, and chastened, and humble of soul those who have to nurse it, never the ogres that bear it. Those who are due to get the plaudits of the congregation, and to call forth expressions sympathetic that is living around here are the brothers and sisters, and especially the husbands and wives of people who have chronic complaints.

The truth is that sickness is a sudden wealth. It takes a person of so many who strength of character great for endurance, and almost superhuman self-control to stand it with us, being quite cocky and arrogant. The opportunity it offers one to strut in the spotlight is too much for weak mortality. The temptation it throws in one's way to boast and brag for one's sufferings are too deliciously great.

This is what accounts for the deaths of our friends and relatives us to bear up with such Christian fortitude at funerals for well we know that although one may recover physically from a serious illness, the chances are a hundred to one that he will never recover morally. He may get back the tone of his system, but never the tone of his conversation. Henceforth and forever after it will reek of drugs and antiseptics.

"Alas, poor John," we say as we lay a large floral offering on his grave, "a better fellow, a more entertaining companion, a more delightful man never lived. It is said to lose him thus, but perhaps he is best off from a worse fate. No one is ever quite the same after a serious illness and he is at least preserved from becoming a bore."

Although the invalid is universally regarded as being one of the most frightful pests of society and one that, like [illegible] we have to endure with [illegible] outside of the ranks of [illegible] and their [illegible] Adam and Eve were ejected from Paradise sickness was given them in order that they might have something to talk about.

Be that as it may, from that day to this, describing their symptoms has been the chief recreation and diversion of a certain class of people who have grown more and more numerous until now they are known by the generic name of invalids.

At first invalids appear to have been harmless creatures that were rather fancied in household pets, especially the feminine ones, indeed, if we are to judge from society of the past, it was esteemed somewhat elegant to have an invalid wife or daughter around. Tradition also represents that invalids of that time were quiet and subdued, and kept themselves in the background, never speaking much unless spoken to, and then always answering in a cheerful tone of voice and comforting words [illegible] of splendid [illegible]

Now, and by what means, the invalid of fiction and real life emerged from the shrinking [illegible] to the boast of prey it now is nobody seems to know. All we are positive of is that it is here, and that it is an ever present danger [illegible] to whose prey [illegible] no attempt at the growth of the genus. One cannot forget to the germ theory which contended that it is one to appreciate having become fast friends while others, with equal reason, hold that it is just the natural queasiness of humanity working it out.

After having stated that the invalid is ubiquitous and that none may escape [illegible] I must [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

JOHN WORTH KERN

By ALFRED HENRY LEWIS.

HE who seeks the vice-presidency seeks the presidency and he who seeks the presidency should come with clean hands. Also his hands should not only be clean but strong.

Five Presidents have died in office. With this to invite a public gravity, it is not needed that the people be told to have a care in picking their Vice-Presidents.

It is not nice nor pleasant as an effort in a campaign to bring true of a man which can be truthfully said and forgotten. And were the men to abide by a private statute the choice could on small argument that fatuous driving either him or the public those facts in his career which fall to make for his good repute.

THE SNOW MAN

BY FERENCZ MOLNAR

BY THE MAN WHO WROTE "THE DEVIL"

(Translated from the Original Hungarian by Eugene Lucas.)

"It was indeed a crazy snow man, with hollow stomach and concave chest. It stood with its hands on its hips in a dandified attitude. It had sharp, restless features and gazed into the air with anxiety."

ALONG the white, snow-carpeted street six empty black hansom cabs loitered. From the windows above they resembled shiny-backed maggots lined up beside the pavement. The horses attached to them swung their heads to and fro and seemed thankful for the small blankets that covered their backs. Evidently they felt the chill in the air, but they neither shivered nor stamped their feet, as did the six coachmen waiting near by, who danced the "Coachman Csardas" while slapping their hands under their armpits.

The snow was piled up into hillocks awaiting the street cleaners with their shovels and carts. Among the hillocks there was a snow man standing, as snow men usually stand. Its feet seemed already to have taken root in the frozen ground, and its arms nestled snugly to the trunk. The snow man had a big stomach, a short neck, and with the two chestnuts forming its eyes it gazed into the air with an amiable expression.

A pipe was in its mouth. The pipe was not lit, but the snow man seemed to be unconcerned about that. It was pleased with life, regardless of small things.

The snow man was the handiwork of Csupu, a stable boy. Csupu was a specialist in the fashioning of snow men. When he was connected with another hansom station he used to build a little chap from snow, which was illuminated at night and guarded by two snow men at the door. Each of the snow men had a whiskbroom protruding from his pocket, and this won much admiration from the children of the district, and even from the adults, who passed by smilingly.

The fee paid to Csupu for his work of art was a very moderate one, but he could make good use of money, for no one could get intoxicated so cheaply as this Csupu could—and did.

Here in the Andrassy avenue, where all the distinguished mansions of smart Budapesters are, it was impossible to execute complicated building plans. Therefore Csupu had to limit his efforts to snow men. However, his art triumphed all the more.

This snow man now in question was the most wonderful snow man ever destined to melt away on the streets of Budapest.

A celebrated sculptor, coming from his studio to hire a carriage, saw neither the bustling coachman nor the stable boy uncovering the horse. He could see only Csupu's wonderful snow man.

And with his thumb he made a serpentine movement in the air from upward, which, among sculptors, is the high sign of approval.

Then the carriage rumbled away. But more frosty days came and went and the great sculptor was again in need of a carriage. He hired one. The snow man stood there yet, and gazed at the artist fixedly out of his chestnut eyes.

"Why," said the sculptor, "there is character in this snow man! Life and movement, too! I perceive also materialistic features—it [illegible] from character. This certainly is the most amusing [illegible]"

The [illegible] called out from the cab window.

"What's this snow man?"

The coachman jumped down from the box.

"It's this boy made it, if you please—Csupu."

"Are you Csupu?"

"[illegible] make this snow man?"

"At your honorable service."

"What's your name?"

"John Csepell."

The artist surrendered his card.

"To-morrow morning be sure to come to my studio." And the sculptor rolled off in his cab.

Csupu stood in the street with the card in his hand gazing in a stupid manner after the disappearing vehicle. After awhile he shook himself like a dog, inspected the card carefully and then looked at the snow man. It was useless. Csupu could get no light on this extraordinary matter.

I do not hesitate to take you into my confidence and tell you that Csupu had been "discovered." It is a mark of bygone youth in an artist when he devotes himself to discovering talent in others. The sculptor who had discovered Csupu was no longer young.

The beginning of artistic impotency also drives authors to seek the lips of editorial rooms, where they may become discoverers. At the age when the artist discovers, he is like the father who takes joy in the development of his children—because his own development has ceased.

Plainly this is a moral phenomenon produced by the gradual ossification of the arteries—one refrains from using the harsh word senility.

Csupu was discovered by the sculptor and laughed at by his models. The models were still young. Distinguished gentlemen—professors and dried-up artists—came to the studio to see Csupu working with the clay. Dashing, smart ladies entered into conversation with him.

"Well, how goes the great work?"

Csupu, or rather Csepell, made a face of discontent.

"This clay is warm," he said.

He went on plastering the sticky material around an iron bar, but felt that it was not the ideal material. The snow—that was something worth while! When one plunges his hand into it it is like feathers. If you press a handful it cracks, turns into stone; and it is clean to work with, too. But clay, on the contrary, is very obedient. It stretches out, it glazes, it is like a pie unbaked, and then it is heavy, too.

Csupu put the clay around the iron wires, covered the wooden crosses which hold it together, for he was industrious, and they were attentive to him. He was getting along nicely.

Once His Excellency, the Minister of Education, himself took a look at Csupu's work.

"Remarkable!" he said. "And you were a coachman?"

"Oh, no," replied Csupu, proudly; "worse than that. A stable help, an ordinary stable help, honorable sir."

"Great!" said His Excellency.

And then Csupu was sent to Paris to study.

His art had attracted special attention among the hundreds of other ragged pupils. Only in Hungary are students of art so young as he was. His beard was nothing out of the usual. For a year in Paris he had much trouble with the clay, was very fond of drink and wrote in big letters reports to his discoverer at home.

Once Csupu won a domestic award at the Julian Academy. "The Genius of Peace Quisting the Spirit of War," was the theme.

Monsieur Csepell acquitted himself at this task excellently. When the professor announced the award he said:

"Monsieur Csepell is the winner of the first prize. It is a good work. It shows strong feeling for plastic sculpture. It's only fault is that there is not the slightest ease in it. It is heavy, as if it had been made from—I don't know what—from a medium—from such!"

If at this moment somebody had remarked, "From snow," is it a certainty that the professor would have said:

"Yes, yes; that's it. That's what I wanted to say. Monsieur Csepell's work might have been modeled in snow."

When Csupu came back from Paris he exhibited a few of his sculptures. He sent in a thick, powerful, bare-necked torso, a man in white trousers, the two halves of which seemed to melt into each other. His feet were rooted into the pedestal with awful steadiness and his arms were held close to the trunk. It had a big stomach and a short neck; a pipe was hanging down from its fangs. It bore the title:

"Resting Laborer."

Its face was a little stupid, but otherwise showed satisfaction with the course of the universe.

The artist who had discovered Csupu called him into his private studio, scratched his chin, and said:

"Csepell, you good for nothing! Why, that's a snow man you exhibited here!"

Csupu cast down his eyes and did not say a word. The artist strode up and down in his studio, made sour faces, then suddenly took his hat and went out.

Csupu sauntered to the exhibition, gazed awhile at the "Resting Laborer," shrugged his shoulders and then went to a music hall [illegible].

Horrible days followed. The artist made Csupu's head ache with his lectures on the new ideas of modern plastic art. Csupu learned with consternation that he was expected to go back to the very beginning of these things, that the clay, the marble, the bronze, do not melt away like the snow and that M. Csepell should not get frightened thereat.

But the poor fellow was ready to take up these new materials. He could not permit himself a single daring movement in expression. The legs which he sculptured put their toes between their legs, as though afraid they would melt and disappear.

The wretched pupil employed every effort (tried earnestly) to treat his subjects with ease. He wanted to be easy, elegant, "chic," but it was all in vain. He was hard and powerful, like Meunier or Rodin. His fellow students admitted that he was somewhat pregnant and stuck-ish—nothing more.

As rapidly as he had risen did he sink.

His discoverer did not care for him any longer. Csupu was abandoned to his fate. He gazed, stupefied, at the mass of clay, struggled with life deserted by his friends. Again he started to exaggerate. He built on their toes standing geniuses and formed subtle profiles.

But in vain.

And now the story is rapidly nearing its end. M. Csepell did not improve, consequently his fellow artists "stepped on his head."

He was left alone and he found time heavy on his hands. He was miserably poor. The little money he had he spent for drink.

A night came when the only bed for Csupu was a bench in the park. Although he was much more acceptable in his appearance than when he was a stable boy, people said he looked like a "bum."

Csupu had slept very uncomfortably on the park bench. He limped back to the city with bloodshot eyes and went straight to his old hansom cab station. Two of his old coachmen acquaintances were still there.

"The Csupu!" they exclaimed.

And again they danced the peculiar coachman's dance among the snow hills, slapping their hands under their armpits.

Alas! in Csupu's old place there was a new stable boy, and so he had to say goodbye.

From Monday till Saturday he sought anxiously for a similar job, and on Saturday he found it.

He attended to the watering of the horses, washed the carriages, drank, and began to feel all right again.

"Old man," said an ancient acquaintance, "shall we have a snow man this year?"

Csupu smiled sorrowfully, and in the afternoon the snow man was finished. The coachman took an expert look at the work and smiled.

The other nodded and walked away.

There was no one to give Csupu even the usual penny for a drink.

It was indeed a crazy snow man, with hollow stomach and concave chest. It stood with its hands on its hips in a dandified attitude. It had sharp, restless features and gazed into the air with anxiety.

This was Csupu's last "easy figure."

By night its head hung down, its feet fell to ruin and its stomach betokened a snow man in the last stages of starvation.

"You can't make a snow man any more, Csupu," said the old coachman.

ROBINSON CRUSOE was there to see
The famous Teddies, B and G.
When they arrived at noon that day,
With his favorite monkey, who led the way,
He came to the gate the Bears to greet,
And his dress of skins from head to feet,
And his whiskered face and tousled head,
Just as the story books had said,
And his pleasant manner and welcome grip,
And the Bears around from the famous ship,
Made the Little Bears just jump with joy
To find this friend of every boy.

"How do you do?" said Teddy B.
"We crossed three thousand miles of sea
And landed here, we don't know how.
Blown here, like you, by storms, and now
We're glad we've come, for we have read
Of Crusoe's Isle, and the story said
That you were lonesome and worked each day
To pass the lonesome hours away.
But we can tell you lots that's new
About New York and London, too:
And now, I'm sure, if you let us stay,
We'll make you happy every day."

Then Crusoe said: "You're welcome here;
My home is yours; there's naught to fear.
I'll tell you how I live alone,
And show you everything I own.
But Teddy Bears are new to me,
And you must first yourselves agree
To tell me all the things you know,
And why the children love you so:
About Presidents and Kings and Queens,
And the Teddy name and what it means."

Then down they sat B. [illegible],
On a wooden seat without a back,
And talked and talked and stories told
About detectives and hunters bold,
About countries far beyond the sea,
About [illegible] and geography,
And [illegible] and fun and scares,
Till Crusoe and the Teddy Bears
Were [illegible] friends who met once more
[illegible]
And while they talked the monkey sat
Right out in front to hear the chat,
And Crusoe's parrot, with nod of head,
Gave his approval to [illegible] said

Then Crusoe showed them all about
His little home, inside and out;
His chest of tools and pots of clay,
His calendar, a notch each day,
With two for Sunday, the way he knew
The days and years which he'd gone through;
And the mountain top where he got a view,
And his little farm and carved canoe,
And how he cooked three meals a day,
And the things he ate, and then the way
His clothes were made from leather goods
From things he shot out in the woods.
Then a good supper Crusoe prepared,
One of the best, Teddy G declared,
That he had eaten, and quite as good
As the last he had with Red Riding Hood
Then Crusoe let the two Bears creep
Into a cave, where they went to sleep.

"'How do you do?' said Teddy B.
'We crossed three thousand miles of sea.'"

"And talked and talked and stories told
About detectives and hunters bold."

"Then Crusoe let the two Bears creep into a cave where they went to sleep."

OH, WINNIE!

Copyrighted 1908 by the American Chicle Co. All Rights Reserved

Verse by Carolyn Wells

Winnie's big cousin Billy was as mad as he could be,
And savagely he strode about and fiercely kicked a tree!
He was a college athlete, but at books he wouldn't grind,
So he was barred from football just because he fell behind.

"Why, Billy, boy," his cousin cried, "what can the matter be?
Shine, little glow-worm, glimmer—do cast a smile on me!"
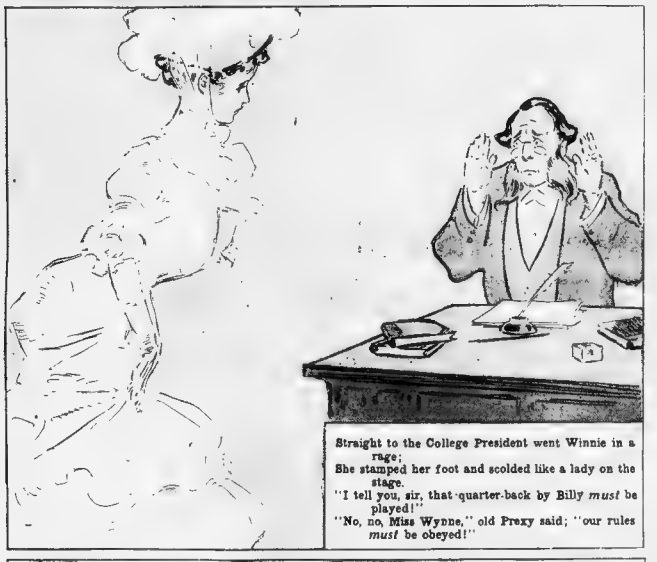
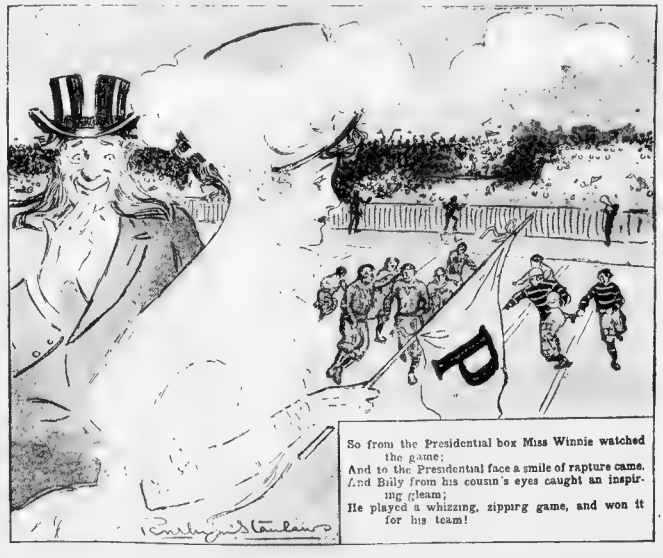
"Oh, booful cousin," Billy grinned, "I've got the worstest glums;
They won't let me play football, 'cause I didn't do my sums!"



Straight to the College President went Winnie in a rage;
She stamped her foot and scolded like a lady on the stage.
"I tell you, sir, that quarter-back by Billy must be played!"
"No, no, Miss Wynne," old Prexy said; "our rules must be obeyed!"

In Winnie's eyes a little smile had roguishly begun,
And Prexy's wrath began to melt like ice beneath the sun;
Then as he babbled mildly on—"but rules must be obeyed"—
The smile broke loose. "Hold on," he cried, "exceptions might be made!"

"Yes, yes, Miss Wynne, I'll see to it! Of course—why, I declare,
It won't be any sort of game unless our Billy's there!
And—by the way, Miss Winnie—I've a box—ahem! te-hee!
I should be greatly honored if you'd share that box with me!"



So from the Presidential box Miss Winnie watched the game;
And to the Presidential face a smile of rapture came.
And Billy from his cousin's eyes caught an inspiring gleam;
He played a whizzing, zipping game, and won it for his team!

WHO IS THE FASHIONABLE SOCIETY "RAFFLES?"

Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts—THE FIRST WOMAN WHOSE MAGNIFICENT NECKLACE WAS STOLEN AT A BALL.

EXTRAORDINARY AND LONG CONTINUED SERIES OF THEFTS AT THE BRILLIANT ENTERTAINMENTS OF EXCLUSIVE "HIGH SOCIETY" RIGHT UNDER THE VERY EYES OF HOSTESSES AND GUESTS

INTENSE excitement and consternation have been caused in the wealthiest and most fashionable society by a series of jewel thefts, which apparently must be attributed to a society "Raffles."

These thefts began in the fashionable Anglo-American colony in London early in the Summer when Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts's beautiful pearl necklace was stolen and continued at Newport during the season there.

The method of the thief and all the circumstances point to a person who moves in the most fashionable circles of society both here and abroad, possesses abundant means and is a welcome guest at the most exclusive gatherings. The suggestion at first seemed that the thefts may have been committed by a servant, but now definitely abandoned because no one servant could have been present at all the different places in England and America where the losses have occurred.

There appears to be a strong probability that the thief is a man, because many of the articles have been stolen from places where a man would hardly venture to show himself. The certainty with which the thief picks out genuine jewels and also the most valuable ones, the daring and dexterity with which she removes them almost under the nose of the wearer all point to the gentle touch of a feminine hand.

The first and most prominent person to be robbed was young Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts. Her husband is the son of the late Marshall O. Roberts, who was once the richest merchant in New York. Some years ago his widow married an Englishman, Colonel Ralph Vivian, and took her son to England to live. Young Roberts has been an officer in His Majesty's Guards. His wife is an English girl, the daughter of Sir George Murray, but she is very well known in America, having spent a whole season at Newport. She is very handsome, and has a famous collection of jewels, among which is a pearl necklace presented to her by her mother-in-law. As one of the English society journals expressed it, the young Robertses began life comfortably on an income of $400,000 a year.

It was at a ball given by the Duchess of Wellington at Apsley House that young Mrs. Roberts lost her necklace. The ball was attended by the flower of the British aristocracy and the fashionable American colony in London. Mrs. Roberts has herself described how she lost her precious jewels.

"I went to the ball, at which there were consider-

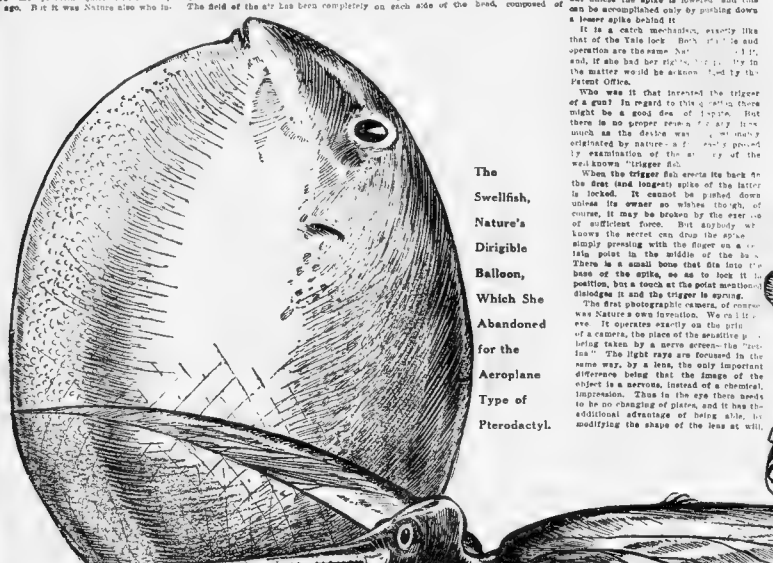
HOW NATURE INVENTED ARMOR, BALLOONS, AEROPLANES—

And Even Hinges, Combination Locks, Cameras, Electric Batteries and Gas Pliers Are All Neatly Worked Out in Fishes and Animals.

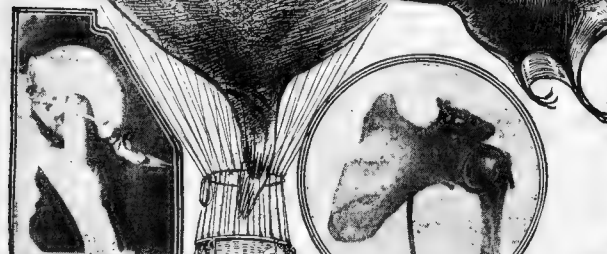
The Lobster Is Better and More Completely Armored Than Was Any Knight of Old



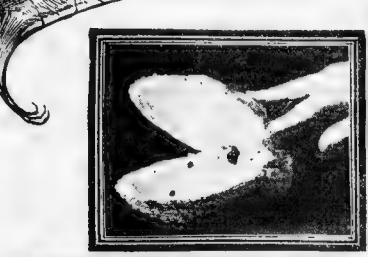
The Swellfish, Nature's Dirigible Balloon, Which She Abandoned for the Aeroplane Type of Pterodactyl.

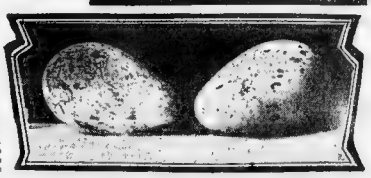
The Gourd Was the First Bottle.

No Patent on These Gas Pliers—Nature Invented Them.



Man Had a "Ball and Socket" Joint in His Hip Thousands of Years Before He Invented It.





Nature Needed "Boxes" Like These in Her Business Since the Earliest Times. The Hinge Above Was Invented About 8,000,000 Years Ago.

NATURE was the first inventor of aeroplanes, and built both kinds of machine created to the common skate, though of great and most graceful size, and type and feeding with much [illegible] size, frequently weighing more than [illegible] pounds, is a familiar species to recall a how great an [illegible] human contrivances. Either [illegible] gas with which its body was distended [illegible] original, have [illegible] Nature learned of both the [illegible] Fishermen are cautious about [illegible] Take balloons and flying machines for instance. For many days [illegible] fish was able to make the [illegible] example, about which people are making so much fuss nowadays. So far as the fish failed as an airship it succeeded as of their construction, a short service enough [illegible] latter are concerned. It is obvious that a plain, ordinary fish with a swimming bladder [illegible] Nature—as is illustrated by birds and bats—auxiliary device and therefore survives [illegible] solved the problem quite satisfactorily many [illegible] ago. But it was Nature also who [illegible]

The field of the air has been completely [illegible] of Nature's own patents. For there is a very common kind of fish, found in the Red Sea, and known to science as Moana cantina, which employs for its own purposes exactly the same contrivance.

The Arab boys know this [illegible] fish well. It lives among the coral reefs, and, when pursued, retreats into a convenient hole, thereupon elevating a spike in the back of it, as is usually the case, the cavity is small, the puny fugitive cannot be pulled out unless the spike is lowered. And this can be accomplished only by pushing down a lesser spike behind it.

It is a catch mechanism, exactly like that of the Yale lock. Both principle and operation are the same. Nature [illegible] it, and, if she had her rights, [illegible] by in the matter would be acknowledged by the Patent Office.

Who was it that invented the trigger of a gun? In regard to this question there might be a good deal of dispute. But there is no proper reason for any [illegible] much as the device was [illegible] originated by nature—a fact [illegible] proved by examination of the anatomy of the well-known "trigger fish."

When the trigger fish erects its back fin the first (and largest) spike of the latter is locked. It cannot be pushed down unless its owner so wishes though, of course, it may be broken by the exercise of sufficient force. But anybody who knows the secret can drop the spike simply pressing with the finger on a certain point in the middle of the back. There is a small bone that fits into the base of the spike, so as to lock it in position, but a touch at the point mentioned dislodges it and the trigger is sprung.

The first photographic camera, of course, was Nature's own invention. We call it the eye. It operates exactly on the principle of a camera, the place of the sensitive plate being taken by a nerve screen—the "retina." The light rays are focussed in the same way, by a lens, the only important difference being that the image of the object is a nervous, instead of a chemical, impression. Thus in the eye there needs to be no changing of plates, and it has the additional advantage of being able, by modifying the shape of the lens at will, to alter the focus without requiring to stop [illegible]

Among the earliest and best [illegible] of Nature's inventions were locks, which [illegible] she utilizes in a great variety of ways. The needs them for all sorts of purposes, to hold one thing or another, and all of the boxes manufactured by all of the [illegible] makers in the world are but a trifling [illegible] compared with the vast number she [illegible] out. Some of these boxes are egg-cases, and are familiar enough in our markets, are swede, large kinds of which we commonly call nuts.

Such boxes are always beautifully constructed, and often they are exquisitely decorates. The eggs of birds are frequently ornamented in colors as English resembling hard wood. No admirable walnut is elaborately carved, a horse picked are the nuts inside of this receptacle chestnut, fresh from the burr, has a nucleus that, when once they have been taken bogany polish that looks as if it were put on, it is not possible for anybody to put on with an oiled rag. But in its way the all of them back again.

Not least curious of Nature's receptacles most striking of them all is the box, of nature's own contriving, which cannot fail are the gourds and calabashes, some of

One of the most striking of Nature's inventions is the hinge. Man did not originate hinges at all; yet how could he get along without them? Every mollusk, such as the clam, has a hinged shell; but, to find the perfect contrivance of this kind, one should observe such a shellfish as the so-called "thorny oyster" of South Pacific waters. Its shell is provided with a hinge as excellent in design and as admirable in its working as the best that can be purchased in a hardware store.

The familiar hinge [illegible] joint, which is of such importance in mechanics, was almost undoubtedly suggested by the knee, the [illegible] joint of a human being. In the human [illegible] one finds the first plan represented by the so-called "balls of Corti," which are coils of different lengths and so graduated as to respond each of them to a different note. By this means we are enabled to [illegible] different pitches of sound [illegible] auditory nerve by a separate [illegible] into [illegible] ble to a piano wire.

Ages before such an idea occurred to any human engineer, Nature made the stems of bamboo, wheat, and other grasses hollow, in order that they might have a maximum supporting strength in proportion to their weight. It might even be said that Nature devised the first hypodermic syringe, and with it first practised inoculation, through the medium of the mosquito, though this doesn't add to her popularity. But, indeed, all of the evolution of life, both animal and vegetable, on the earth has been a history of invention by the arch deviser, incidentally to which she seems to have undertaken an innumerable multitude of experiments many of them being eventually rejected, while those that proved successful have been retained as useful contributions to the general scheme of creation.

The swellfish is so common in [illegible] Atlantic [illegible] sense to [illegible] food, and [illegible] getting [illegible] water, it [illegible] air in great [illegible] until it [illegible] strange [illegible] may appear, this is said on excellent [illegible] authority to be a means adopted by the creature to escape [illegible] It does [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] ing [illegible] over [illegible] the wind.

So much [illegible] fish air is taken in between [illegible] and the [illegible] cost of the body proper. There is a valve which prevents the air from flowing out until the fish so chooses. A prick of a pin, however, [illegible] whole affair to collapse at an instant's notice. Pin a balloon.

It is believed that this fish is one of the few surviving failures which Nature has made. When Nature makes an unsuccessful experiment, the creature with which it is made pays the penalty with its existence.

A few millions of years ago Nature took up mans present problem of flying. Man is now testing two kinds of flyers—the dirigible balloon (lighter than air), and the aeroplane (heavier than air). Nature [illegible] by various peculiar type of heavier-than-air machine, which are principally [illegible] For [illegible]

Man's great invention of armor was [illegible] with a model perfect superior to the [illegible] savage and formed the basis of knighthood and chivalry, was developed and perfected [illegible] before man was. After [illegible] Nature early in her efforts found need of armor [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible]

"Look at those lowered lids, the air of secret knowledge ... is evolution—the hunted has become the huntress."

"In the Chinese costume there is something artificial about Evelyn, something left out of the picture, which makes this view of her, while lovely in line and color, one of the least distinctive in the series."

"By means of a ... Evelyn, Stanford White has genius for costume and his love of harmonious detail."

"In the third photograph it pleased the taste of Stanford White to show what he might do with his model by means of costume and charming accessory."

"At first glance one can but feel a pang of pity for this brutal exposure to the world of every charm of the fragile body."

"And this last picture, still handsome, though no more beautiful with innocence and the pride of purity: this is the shadowed face of the woman 'who knows.' One woman [illegible] lengthened her fingers a quarter of an inch [illegible] by this process.

It frequently happens that a woman has [illegible] the fashionable hand by nature, and yet it is not a simple one. It is necessary that the [illegible] with the towel and neglect [illegible]

"In all there are five of them, one for every finger of the disengaged hand. On the tips of each pink finger the five little metal bonnets—looking for all the world like thimbles with butterfly handles—are placed."

Stretching the Fingers to Get the Fashionable Hand.

Pleasant Occupation for Women—Training Crocodiles.

GREAT interest is being excited in Paris just now by Miss Siva, an attractive Hindu woman, who has tamed and trained a troupe of huge and ferocious crocodiles.

The spectacle of this young woman putting her head into the cavernous jaws of the [illegible] reptiles provides a new thrill [illegible] for the jaded Parisians. But she considers [illegible] it a pleasant occupation for a woman who [illegible] is thrown on her own resources.

Miss Siva [illegible] name from ruined or starved to death. The punishment [illegible] who was passing through the [illegible] was in the Middle Ages. Now, one of the strictest rules of the caste is that no Hindu must touch the dead body of a Christian to aid in his burial.

Miss Siva had the misfortune to break [illegible] and her parents to be educated at a boarding school in Calcutta, conducted by English women, and there, of course, she learned English.

So Miss Siva went home to Mirzapur more or less liberated from caste principles. Shortly after her return there a young English woman traveling [illegible]

When Miss Siva heard that [illegible] with the body of this poor girl, because she was an outcaster, she was delighted. She went to the house of death in broad daylight and with the aid of an old servant buried the body in her garden. [illegible] to dig the grave with her own [illegible]

As soon as the news was [illegible] Miss Siva became an object of horror to the populace. The passers-by averted their faces with disgust from the threshold of her house. The servants in her family refused to wait upon her. Her own [illegible] would not [illegible] to feed upon [illegible] where a servant had [illegible] through a knife, [illegible] and now her or touch her or handle [illegible] which she touched.

To escape this fate Siva determined to run away from home. She returned to the boarding school in Calcutta and to her sorrow she found that it had changed [illegible] it had passed under the control of Eurasian or half-breed women, who would have nothing to do with her.

Deserted and in danger of starvation, Siva was glad to take domestic service in [illegible] type, for cleansing purposes entirely. This dipping character of them in cold water, this [illegible] as it were, only serves to grind the dust and dirt into [illegible] which he pores. Then women complain and woncr grace [illegible] why [illegible] is.

Water must be soft [illegible] it is not. Then naturally so a little [illegible] in the basin will make it [illegible] Next to this important point, a good [illegible] is most essential, one without [illegible]. One that has a large quantity of vegetable oil in its composition is best. Any woman can make her own soap, if she wishes, and it certainly is to be desired [illegible] she does so, [illegible] what [illegible] are.

A very delightful combination for this purpose is made from one pound of palm oil soap, one-third of a pound of olive oil soap, one pound of white curd soap, one-third of an ounce of tincture of orris root and the same amount of essence of [illegible] and [illegible] cast[illegible]

If, after washing and just before drying [illegible] the hands a few drops of [illegible] and the rosewater are poured into the palms and [illegible] Otherwise she will not be the typical Directoire girl of 1906.

Why It Pays to Look Out for Others.

THOUSANDS of persons are met with [illegible] in life [illegible] looking out [illegible] looking after [illegible] who are [illegible] that every person has regard [illegible] for himself and for others, but one [illegible] gives the first place to himself, his own comfort, his own pleasure, while another man gives the first place in all these lines to others.

And it is a noteworthy fact that, by the divine law of compensation, the man who is always looking out for himself is likely to have no one else to look out for him, while the man who is always looking out [illegible] ready to give place [illegible] unselfishly willing to be last, may be the second first.

Even selfish considerations, therefore, should prompt a man to bear himself unselfishly.

THE MAN WHO STOLE THE EARTH

Most Thrilling Novel of Love and Adventure Since Jules Verne's Masterpiece.

By W. Holt White.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

While the King of Nissa—Henry as Mr. Monte Christy Jones—is courting a wife on the Thames, near London, Jones, being a rich and adventurous young widower, has fallen in love with his daughter, Princess Diana. At Jones's bungalow across the river he finds Jim Langley, is performing a wonderful feat of [illegible] and is supposed to be [illegible] Jones, as he has only one wrecked [illegible] a mechanical contrivance, and [illegible] secures the confidence of Jones, strong reasons that by means of the aeroplane and Langley's knowledge of the [illegible] he can [illegible] Jones's secret discovery to bring the [illegible] of [illegible] Meanwhile, Jones has been [illegible] with the King [illegible] Princess Diana's hand in marriage. The King [illegible] Jones's wealth as his means of [illegible] and [illegible] Diana, who is [illegible] Jones, and the King makes several attempts to destroy it, to purchase it, and to put Strong out of the way—all in vain. Strong [illegible] who, secretly in love with Princess Diana, [illegible] the King's schemes. Strong [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] with both, appoints an editor of the London "Daily Wireless" as his means of communicating with the world, and takes in his representative, Miss Hunt, aboard, and flies to Monberg, the capital of Nissa, whither the King has preceded him, accompanied by Princess Diana.

"Now, you know, my dear," he went on, "that I more of less trust to you in this matter. That is to say, I more or less rely upon your suggestion. I am no hand at diplomacy. Hammering people till they give in to more to my mind."

"That seems to be my line," said Diana, "some what of a confession of small brain power [illegible] you really mean to tell me that since [illegible] this afternoon you have been unable to think of any other scheme whereby you could achieve by peace what you propose to win by war?"

"To tell you the truth," said Strong, "I have; and, ruling England out of it for the time being, I see but one way. In spiting England, there is in Europe at the present time only one man with really [illegible] who is a real man, for one can with a real ruler of men. I mean the Kaiser. Now if I can succeed the grate for [illegible] of the scheme which I have thought out in this

I will offer my services to his Imperial Majesty Billy, of Germany, in return for the kitchen of Russia. He might subsequently require me to make war on France, and Russia in order, of course [illegible]

But these are matters which can be dealt with when the time comes.

I fancy for the present he would be [illegible] with a little friendly correction in a few directions which would give him an immense pull over his neighbors. Of one thing I am certain, that of all people in the world, he will best appreciate the advantages of having such an airship as the [illegible] at his disposal.

I am to the west on, "conveniently go on" I myself. I could not think him very well in the Victor without the chance of meeting with a rebuff, and if I met with a rebuff I fear that I might lose my patience, and then [illegible] Monaco Potsdam what has already befallen Monaco

"And as Strong continued, if you can order the plan a good one, I shall send Miss Hunt over to Vienna to [illegible] right. I will appoint her Minister Plenipotentiary with certain limitations, of course, to Austria, and as Irishmen and she can meet the Kaiser."

If he will receive her," said Diana.

I don't think," said Strong, "that there is any fear of that. Provided a man has [illegible] and many possible proposition to make, the Kaiser will never turn a deaf ear [illegible] is one of the great beauties of his character. He likes to deal with foreigners personally. Even if it is only out of [illegible] I feel certain that he will condescend to see me through Miss Hunt, and in this case, I am more worthy of consideration than Koepenick."

Diana's face shone ruddy in the light of the fire and [illegible] now it was almost a happy [illegible]

Without [illegible] Strong pro [illegible] to start at once. [illegible] he was even tempted to allow [illegible] to fall into Strong's head-long, hurry [illegible], needless wars. But she had herself [illegible] remembering that she must [illegible] for a time at least, a drag upon the [illegible] wheel of his many movements.

Without [illegible] Strong, therefore, Strong proceeded to [illegible] and before [illegible] he got an answer back

Simply and concisely he informed her of the failure at Monaco, and unfolded his immediate plan of campaign in which the Kaiser was the chief objective

Consideration, he said, "I don't want to rob you of all your sleep, but if you don't start for Berlin by the first thing in the morning, you will be unable to do any thing with the Kaiser for [illegible] days."

Miss Hunt [illegible] back that she was sinking. She was becoming inured to hardship, and used to little sleep. She was getting positively to start at once.

"I should be glad, however," she said, "if you would tell me how you think that I [illegible] next on audience with His Majesty."

Strong gave her full instructions as to the [illegible] of this. He had [illegible] the Embassy in Berlin, and [illegible] only had given him many [illegible] to the best way of tackling the Kaiser [illegible] whom he was then par [illegible]

When [illegible] had finished his conversation with Miss Hunt [illegible] took the instrument. At first she looked at Strong and hear him to draw a little part

Then [illegible] talked to Miss Hunt

I think you are the bravest girl I ever [illegible] not count for [illegible] I [illegible] further doubted [illegible] I think of what has already happened [illegible] and [illegible] heart [illegible] sick."

Believe you," Miss Hunt [illegible] back "that my whole heart is with you in this [illegible]

Good night! God bless you and God help you!" said Diana, and then the little instrument [illegible]

CHAPTER VII.

Miss Hunt Visits the Kaiser.

MISS HUNT rose early in the morning and took the express train for Berlin. She arrived at about midnight and drove at once to the Windsor Hotel. There was no chance of being observed here, amid the crowd of cosmopolitan visitors, than at the hatchet, where it is always suspected and every visitor cherished some diplomatic secret.

She slept till about 9 o'clock, and then rose, and shortly before noon drove round the corner to the great pile of the Foreign office in the Wilhelmstrasse.

The black leather [illegible] guard, strutting outside his little [illegible] and black and white [illegible] striped sentry-box, looked [illegible] the English [illegible] ambassador, but Miss Hunt wondered [illegible] was that the German is black [illegible] for the afternoon was more than warm.

On a seat under one of the trees was a little, shrivelled old gentleman, in a rusty frock coat and a seedy silk hat.

Miss Hunt, how trained to acute suspicion at all times and in all places, instantly felt that the little old man was taking an interest in her movements. At any rate, he kept her under constant surveillance from beneath the brim of his hat.

And the hall porter, he chose to be [illegible] lounging on the doorsteps of the hotel at the time. Indeed Miss Hunt with keen [illegible] noticed that he was full well the significance of the presence of the little old gentleman who spoke excellent French.

A PRETTY AND SERVICEABLE WORK APRON, FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER

THE nicety of a simple tailored shirt waist is in its utility and adaptation to many materials. The one here illustrated is tucked in slot effect over the bust and under a notched yoke, which may be omitted, that could be made of contrasting material, together with collar and cuffs.

A long knotted or pretty lace or embroidered bow tie will relieve the plainness of the model. The sleeve is comfortable and in good style.

The pattern is easily made. It is cut in six sizes—32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch material for the 36-inch size.

To obtain either of these two desirable patterns, carefully fill in the accompanying blank and mail with 10 cents in silver or stamps for each to

RESOLVED THAT
SOME PEOPLE WILL NEVER MAKE UP THEIR MINDS ABOUT A THING UNTIL THEY HAVE SLEPT OVER IT. WELL, MY UNCLE BUSTER SLEPT OVER ME AND NOW HE HAS MADE UP HIS MIND. THE MIND IS A WONDERFUL THING THINK HOW GREAT SOME MINDS ARE AND HOW LITTLE OTHERS ARE. AND YET EVEN SMALL MINDS HOLD A GREAT DEAL; THERES WHERE MOST OF OUR AILMENTS ARE. THERES WHERE ALL REAL HAPPINESS IS. BUT IF YOUR MIND IS FULL OF WORRY AND FEAR OR HATE AND ENVY THERES NO ROOM IN IT FOR JOY. IF YOU WILL CULTIVATE A HAPPY MIND, IT WILL KEEP YOU WELL & BRING SUCCESS AND FRIENDS - HONEST IT WILL, TRY IT.
